Saigon commander promises leniency

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"A sea of people" gathered at South Vietnam's former presidential palace today and heard the commander of the Saigon area promise leniency for former opponents of the Viet Cong and respect for the lives and property of foreign residents, Saigon radio reported.

The mass rally, held under a mammoth portrait of Ho Chi Minh, was designed to introduce the new administration for the Saigon region. It marked the regime's first week in power.

In neighboring Cambodia, the last convoy of about 250 foreigners trapped in the country, including five Americans, was reported just 36 miles from the Thai border.

At the same time, the Khmer Rouge radio said Cambodia's new leaders have launched a big campaign to "clear the country of filth and garbage" left by the war and are pursuing an "offensive to increase production" in order to be "completely independent of all foreigners."

At Subic Navy Base in the Philippines, about 20,000 weary refugees arrived in a convoy of 26 South Vietnamese navy vessels after a week's journey from the Vietnamese coast.

U.S. officials said the vessels now belonged to the United States because U.S. Navy officers boarded each ship before they entered Philippine waters and took over title.

The move apparently was designed to meet a Philippine government demand that no ships or personnel of the former Saigon regime enter its territory.

Gen. Tran Van Tra, who led the attack on Saigon in the 1968 Tet offensive and later represented the Viet Cong on the Joint Military Commission, warned the crowd in the South Vietnamese capital of severe punishment against any who "sever themselves from the people" and "serve as henchmen for foreign countries."

But he promised leniency and understanding for soldiers and officials of the old government and respect for the lives and property of foreign residents "providing they earn an honest living through clean business" and obey laws and orders.

The general called on Viet Cong soldiers and cadre to stay ready to "smash all counter revolutionary schemes." He concluded that "our city will surely develop all its rich potential," the radio said.

The national anthem, only slightly altered from that used under the Nguyen Van Thieu regime, opened the rally, the radio said. "Shouting of revolutionary slogans" was the closing item on the schedule.

A delegation of children was detailed to give flowers to members of the military management committee on a podium outside what has become the administrative offices for metropolitan Saigon.

The presidential palace, set in a park of giant tropical trees, was heavily guarded with barbed wire, armored vehicles, antiaircraft guns and troops.

The broadcast said that officials on hand in addition to Tra, chairman of the metropolitan military management committee, included Deputy Chairmen Vo Van Kiet and Mai Quy Tho, and Maj. Gen. Hoang Cam, commander of the metropolitan defense corps.

At the Thai frontier town of Aranyaprathet, Marc Bonnefous, special representative of the French government, said he had received the report of the convoy of foreigners from Khmer Rouge border guards at "Freedom Bridge" that links Cambodia with Aranyaprathet.

Three air-conditioned buses, four French doctors and a team of Thai Red Cross nurses waited near the crossing point for the convoy that in addition to the Americans, includes some 100 French citizens and about 140 Pakistanis who have been living in Cambodia. The first convoy of almost 600 foreigners, which arrived Saturday, took three days to cover the 200-mile route over bomb-damaged roads.

The South Vietnamese were invited to the gala ceremony at the former presidential palace by an earlier Saigon broadcast that warned them to keep order "to prevent any destructive infiltration."

Senate approves petition measure

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Senate gave final approval today to a bill which further regulates the method of circulating initiative petitions for statewide referenda.

The bill, approved 22-12, comes on the heels of another petition measure which won preliminary approval in the House Tuesday.

The Senate bill, sponsored by St. Louis Democrat Don Gralike, makes uniform the type of paper used for petitions and requires that they be circulated on a county-by-county basis to make it easier for county clerks to determine the validity of signatures.

"If you want to modernize the statutes and make sure those signing the petitions are qualified, then vote for the bill," Gralike said.

But opponents of the measure, which now goes to the House for further consideration, contended the bill was designed to hamper the initiative petition process.

Such a method of lawmaking was used during the last general election, when voters approved a new campaign practices bill after the legislature had failed to enact one on its own.

And the Senate Tuesday gave first-round okay to a bill that would allow farmland to be taxed on its use rather than market value.

The initiative petition measure passed on an 80-71 House vote despite claims that the bill was unconstitutional. A similar measure adopted by the Senate awaits consideration by the House.

The bill requires initiative and referendum proposals to be submitted to the legislature's Fiscal Affairs Committee. The panel would have 45 days to estimate the cost of the proposal. Petitions to obtain signatures couldn't be circulated until the estimated cost was attached.

"This bill is intended to effectively neuter the initiative and referendum," Rep. Jack Buechner, R-Kirkwood, a leader of the initiative drive for the new campaign financing law. "This idea is to add one more thing to make it difficult for the legislature to stand task for what it does."

Backers said the bill was necessary to inform voters on all aspects of the proposed initiative and referendum measures before casting their ballots.

Opponents contended that the cost estimate by a legislative committeeviolated the constitutional separation of the initiative process and the legislature. Attempts to have the cost computed by the state auditor or a certified public accountant were rejected.

The land assessment measure, sponsored by Sen. Ralph Uthlaut, R-Florence, creates a state farmland evaluation advisory council. The council would publish values for several types of agricultural land in various parts of the state.

The panel would value land "based upon its productive capabilities when devoted to agricultural or horticultural uses."

The Senate also reversed an earlier rejection of a pay hike for county judges in second, third and fourth class counties. It voted 28-4 to reconsider the salary boosts.

On other pay raise bills, the House tentatively approved immediate pay boosts for collectors in second, third and fourth class counties. The measure is aimed at removing all third and fourth class county collectors from a fee basis to a flat scale.

Seeks expansion funds

Airport board drafts budget

The Sedalia Airport Board met Tuesday night in the Municipal Building and approved sending a budget request of $42,058 to the City Council for fiscal 1976.

"We shouldn't shock the City Council with this budget," board chairman Louis Tempel said.

The budget for fiscal 1975 was for $42,614.

The board will also ask the council for more funds to finance expansion projects at the airport. These include a proposed new hangar with office facilities and all utilities. Tempel said the board would take any funds the council could raise.

In August, 1974, the council denied the board's request for further improvements for the fiscal year ending May 31 due to a lack of funds. "The council was not at variance with what we proposed," Tempel said Wednesday morning. "There simply was a lack of funds."

The proposed budget includes $16,799 for airport employes' salaries and $4,500 for lights and power at the airport.

The board is requesting $5,000 for improvements.

Airport manager Jim Abbas suggested $500 of that amount could be used to purchase a 28-volt battery starter unit to be used on aircraft year-round. He also would like to acquire a $3,500 tug unit to move larger planes. Abbas said the airport's tractor can't move the large planes that use the runway.

The board is also hoping to meet with Federal Aviation Administration personnel in Sedalia in the near future. Tempel said a letter from the FAA requested any changes made in the construction of the airport expansion project be included in the airport's master plan. Tempel said the board will advise the FAA of any problems it may have concerning expansion.

One recent problem at the airport that was brought out in the board's March meeting is the deterioration of concrete in the new runway. At that meeting Abbas said a gravel-like substance was forming in spots on the new runway.

The 100-foot wide and mile long concrete runway was opened in November, 1973. It was built by Howard Construction Co., 1509 North Ohio, and the consulting engineering firm was Anderson and Associates, Springfield. The runway has also been inspected periodically and approved by the FAA.

Temple said Tuesday night he was not pleased that information about the problem was made public, but since March the situation has been investigated.

"The runway has been inspected by the airport board members and the contractor. Agreement was that superficial scaling of the runway surface was caused by expansion of the chert in concrete aggregate. Aggregate was tested before construction and found to be well within allowable limits. No structural damage has occurred and none is expected," Tempel said.

He added that the engineering firm has been asked to confirm this at its earliest convenience.

Abbas also told the board he has been in contact with the Federal Energy Office concerning the airport's fuel allotment. Abbas said the FEO has assured him the airport can get up to 44,000 gallons of gasoline. Abbas said he still would like to get 51,000 gallon.

"We could get by on 44,000 (gallons) the way we've been going," Abbas said.

At the March meeting Abbas said the airport was 7,000 gallons over its allocation

Clean-up begins

Omaha hit by killer tornado

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—National Guardsmen patroled 3,400 square blocks of the city to prevent looting Wednesday as residents began a massive clean-up in the wake of three tornados that killed three persons, left thousands homeless and did millions of dollars of damage.

Eight area hospitals reported treating 132 persons. One man, who lost an arm, was reported in critical condition. Most of the others were not seriously injured.

Gov. J. James Exon surveyed the area from a National Guard helicopter. Afterwards, he said he would ask President Ford for a disaster declaration "which I am sure he will grant."

Exon said, "It's just devastating. We saw at least 500 homes and living units totally destroyed and thousands of others damaged. It's just amazing that we didn't have more loss of life and injuries than we did.

"I've lived in tornado country all my life and I've never seen anything comparable to this for property devastation.

The governor said, "I think the danger of looting is very serious and we'll keep them (National Guardsmen) here as long as we need them." Exon called out all Omaha-area Army and Air National Guardsmen immediately after the tornadoes struck late Tuesday afternoon.

Mayor Edward Zorinsky slapped a curfew on the damaged area at 6:56 p.m. Tuesday. He said the curfew would remain in effect for 72 hours.

Two areas of this city of 350,000 persons were most severely damaged, one a 300-squareblock are in the southwest portion of the city and its southern suburbs, the other a 500-squareblock area in northwest Omaha.

The National Weather Service said about one dozen tornadoes struck widespread areas of northeast Nebraska Tuesday, causing loss of livestock and substantial property damage in a number of smaller communities. No serious injuries or deaths were reported outside of Omaha.

Some of the most severe damage occurred at the 848-unit Wentworth Apartments, the city's largest. About 70 per cent of the complex, which houses about 1,800 persons in suburban Ralston on the city's southern edge, sustained severe damage.

One Wentworth resident, Army Capt. William Rollins, said, "I'm wiped out. Everything is smashed to smithereens."

Another resident, Mrs. Beryle Scott, was in her office overlooking the complex when the twister struck the building housing her apartment. She said her first thought was, "Oh, my God, my children." She rushed to her apartment and found her children safe, though virtually all her possessions were lost and two cars were leaning into the living room.

Other major structures which received heavy damage included several other apartment complexes, a bank, two public schools, a parochial high school, a Jewish temple, a Methodist church, the Omaha Playhouse, a motel, a hospital and numerous retail and wholesale businesses.

Acting Douglas County Corner James Keenan identified the victims as Mrs. Margaret Burke, 86, Lloyd Kramer, about 40, and Pamela Myers, 23, all believed from Omaha.

Police said Kramer died when the roof of a northwest Omaha service station collapsed while he was standing on it watching the approaching tornado.

Israeli driver shot by Arabs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arab guerrillas shot and killed an Israeli truck driver delivering Arab workers to their homes, Tel Aviv police reported today. It was the third guerrilla attack in Israel in four days.

The truck, riddled with bullets, crashed and burned Tuesday night near the town of Jenin in occupied West Jordan.

In Moscow, W. Averell Harriman, a U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union during World War II, said he believes the Kremlin wants to cooperate with Washington in seeking an end to the Mideast conflict.

Harriman, heading a U.S. delegation for ceremonies marking the 30th anniversary of the end of the war in Europe, told newsmen he expected the Geneva peace conference on the Middle East to resume soon.

The Israeli truck driver ran into an ambush after taking a load of laborers from their jobs in Israel to their villages in the occupied zone.

Arab guerrilla organizations have frequently tried to prevent Arabs from commuting to work in Israel, but more than 50,000 make the trip daily.

The shooting was the latest incident in a new series of sabotage acts in Israel. Guerrillas fired two rockets into Jerusalem on Saturday, scoring no casualties, and an Israeli was killed by a guerrilla bomb in a Jerusalem apartment house on Sunday.

Police said a Jordanian Arab was murdered Tuesday in a West Bank town but it was part of a personal feud, not a guerrilla killing.

Gulf Oil given ultimatum by Venezuela

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela has given the Gulf Oil Corp. until Thursday to declare whether $4 million in alleged bribes was paid to Venezuelan officials or discontinue its business in this oil-rich nation.

A Gulf spokesman at the company headquarters in Pittsburgh said late Tuesday that the firm had not received an official communique from the Venezuelan government and would have no comment until official word is received.

President Carlos Andres Perez and his cabinet decided after a meeting Tuesday to demand clarification from Gulf within 48 hours, by 6 p.m. (EDT) Thursday. A story in New York's Wall Street Journal last Friday said Gulf executives told U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission investigators that politicians in a foreign country compelled the company to pay the bribes in cash contributions in order to stay in business there. The country was not named, but the newspaper said it could be a Latin American nation.

"Since this foreign company (Gulf) has dominating interests in Mene Grande Oil Co., which operates in Venezuela, and due to the fact that the charge in reference has given rise to commentaries which could involve Venezuela, the national government has resolved to urgently ask Gulf Oil Corp. ... to publicly clarify whether Venezuelan public or political officials have been objects of or participated in the reported bribery," the communique said.

Gulf holds a 50 per cent interest in Mene Grande Oil Co., the third largest producer in Venezuela. The remaining 50 per cent is shared by International Petroleum Co., a subsidiary of Exxon, and a subsidiary of Royal Dutch Shell.

Rafael Macia-Jerez, assistant to the president of Mene Grande, last week denied any involvement by the company. He said the firm "has been in Venezuela 52 years and we have never made any contributions to any political campaign nor have we paid bribes or made any illegal payment to any government official."

The communique said Perez and his cabinet "analyzed and studied the information divulged by the international press during the past few days, according to which Gulf Oil Corp. has stated that between the years 1966 and 1972 it was obliged to pay certain sums of money in order to continue operating in a country whose name was ommited."

If the requested explanation is not forthcoming in 48 hours, the communique said "the national executive will order Mene Grande Oil Co. to suspend its activities until Gulf Oil Corp. clarifies the participation or lack of it by Venezuelan public or political functionaries in the events referred to."

Revival techniques used for anti-drug program

By CINDY ROSE
Associated Press Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — For $750, The Seed says it will turn a drug-wracked child into an ideal teen.

"The Seed gave me back my son — it gave me back somebody I could love," says Joe Lyons, whose son Tim was on drugs.

But some say that the unusual drug rehabilitation program founded by an ex-alcoholic named Arthur Robert Baker, uses a form of brainwashing to take away a teen-ager's individuality.

"The Seed's methods are repugnant," says Dr. Raymond Killinger, a psychiatrist. "Seed graduates are like robots — they can't think creatively."

Dr. Killinger says that he and other psychiatrists have a dozen young people who have emerged from The Seed only to enter a psychiatric hospital.

Despite the criticism, Art Baker has convinced judges, civic groups and thousands of parents that his program can end drug addiction. A congressional subcommittee headed by Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., once described The Seed as "imaginative, innovative and dynamic."

In Florida, there are Seeds in Fort Lauderdale and St. Petersburg. Another is to open in Orlando. If Barker has his way, outposts will spread into every major city in America. Plans are underway for Seeds in Lexington, Ky.; Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio; Charlotte, N.C., and Dallas, Tex.

Most youths attending The Seed are under 17. Some are as young as 9, and many come from affluent families.

Baker, 51, claims The Seed has a success rate of 90 per cent. In less than four years, he says, his program has straightened out 4,780 teens while failing to help 582.

The state Office of Drug Abuse says the success rate is closer to 40 per cent. Judges who refer young people to The Seed say they don't have the follow-up statistics to either support or refute Baker's claim.

It is hard to pin down why The Seed has ended drug dependence for some. What it attempts, through behavior modification, is to put teen-agers under intense pressure from their peers to change.

"Peer pressure put them on drugs, peer pressure will get them off," Baker says.

★ ★ ★

The Seed (the name symbolizes a new beginning) gets donations from parents and civic clubs and Baker has received laurels, including a

Wuite a change from 1970, when Baker — struggling to make a living as a comedian in Miami Beach night spots — started The Seed in an abandoned house because of what he described as his interest in young people and his "special way" with kids.

The Seed's budget for the year ending Sept. 30, 1973, was $613,979. Figures for subsequent years have not been released because Baker says there is no reason to make them public. Some of the money comes from United Way and part from the $750 fee for each Seedling, as the young people involved in the program are called. City and county governments also have contributed and parents have donated such items as coffee, peanut butter, bread and toilet paper.

The National Institute of Drug Abuse put more than $200,000 into The Seed in 1973, but declined to invest an additional $700,000 unless Baker opened his books to federal inspectors. Baker declined, saying he doesn't want bureaucrats prying into his program.

Twice a week, some 700 parents take seats in a long, open room at the Fort Lauderdale Seed, cushioned for the long night with throw pillows from home.

Across the aisle are 500 teenagers in jeans or weathered slacks.

Each teen-ager in the first two to six weeks of the program is required to stay in a foster home with another Seedling and his family. The youngster sees his parents only at these sessions.

Songs, confessions and chants ring out: "The Seed indeed is all you need, to get off the junk and the pills and the weed," is sung to the tune of "Green Acres." Then comes "America, the Beautiful," and then, one by one, the teens stand for their testimonials.

Messages of hatred, misery or love leave many observers deeply touched.

"The parents have to be involved," says Baker. "You can't just dump a kid off and let somebody do the baby-sitting. If the parents don't come the kids can't stay. These kids have to know their parents are interested and love them. For some parents, it's the first time they've listened to their kids."

Testimonials that the Seed's methods work are frequent and fervent.

But other teens compare The Seed program to an indeterminate jail sentence.

Most teens are taken to The Seed by parents. One in 10 is sent by juvenile court judges.

According to Kate, she first was searched by the staff, her personal possessions confiscated and then she was made to stand before a large group and tell her story.

"You think that the less you tell them you did, the sooner you get out, but they don't believe you," she says.

The Seed's 30 counselors are all ex-drug addicts whom Baker says can't be conned. He disdains professionals. "They can't do a damn thing with kids."

Kate followed the usual regimen. For two weeks she went to The Seed each day from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. At night, she stayed with another Seedling — the foster home — where her door was locked and the windows boarded. She wrote a confession nightly.

The third week she returned to her home and attended 12-hour sessions daily at The Seed. The fourth week, she returned to school, and to The Seed three evenings a week, plus one full day each weekend.

Hour after hour, Kate was forced to evaluate herself. "I learned about myself and I found out other people have feelings," she said. Other teenagers said they had to agree wth the group's morals in order to be allowed to go back home.

Seed rules prohibit teens from seeing their old friends. Baker refuses to discuss the rules. "They can be distorted," he says.

Kate left The Seed after six months. She fit the standards set by Baker for seed graduated: drug free and "respected members of their community (who) discover that they can love themselves, love others, love family, love God and love their country."

Baker, a bachelor, lives rent-free today in a $100,000 home. He pays himself a salary of $25,000 a year to run The Seed from behind a massive desk in a paneled office with marble floors. He says everything was donated, including the house.

Baker is particularly upset about such critics of his program as Dr. Killinger and Leonard Lubin, a St. Petersburg attorney.

Lubin has filed two court suits for the American Civil Liberties Union charging The Seed with invasion of privacy. One was decided in favor of the teen-ager in whose behalf it was filed despite pressure from his parents in favor of The Seed. The other suit was dropped.

Most judges, Lubin says, take a semi-official attitude that parents have a right to decide how to deal with their child.

★ ★ ★

A report by a Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights, issued last December, criticized The Seed as an example of a behavior modification program that attempts to restructure personality.

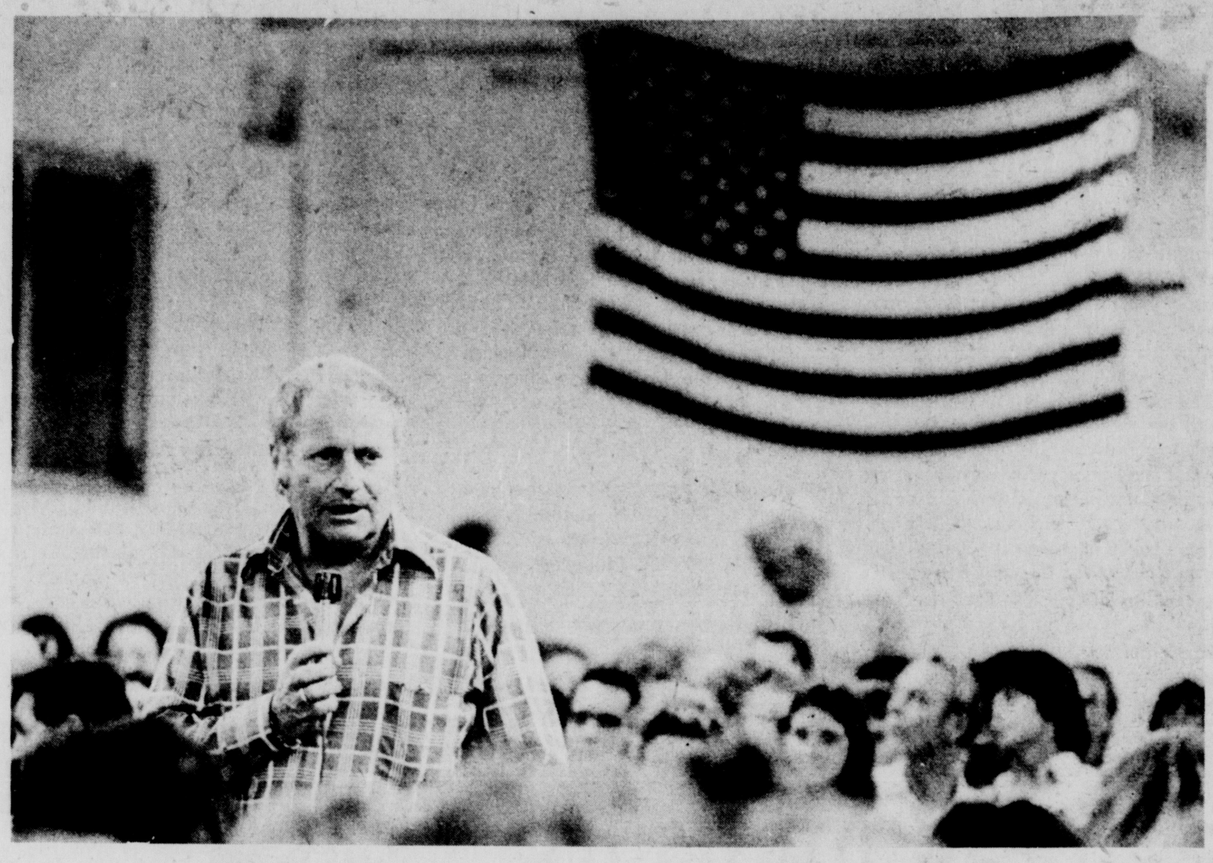

The report quoted an unnamed South Florida high school counselor as saying that teen-agers from The Seed come out "robot-like."

But a study authorized by Florida's Gov. Reuben Askew disagreed. "Despite stories of Seedlings with severe emotional dysfunctioning, the staff was unable to locate any persons with such maladies," said Dr. Richard Caton of Addiction Consultation and Evaluation in Washington.

Caton added, "Clients showed positive attitude changes and exhibited improvements in their family relationships."

But Lubin says, "It makes kids have the image parents want to see. You can buy it in a department store."

The Malagasy Republic on Madagascar is completely surrounded by water.

Controversial rescuer of addicts

Art Barker, founder of the Seed, a drug rehabilitation program, talks to parents and teen-agers at a session of the Fort Lauderdale Seed. Barker is an ex-alcoholic who began the program four years ago and who, despite criticism, has convinced thousands of parents, judges and politicians that he has an answer to the drug problem. There's also a Seed in St. Petersburg and more are planned for other parts of the country. (AP)

Peer pressure

Linked arms unite young participants at a Fort Lauderdale Seed session — and so does the fact that they are all "seedlings," involved with the Seed's drug rehabilitation program. Most attending are under 17, some as young as nine, and in the program they're put under intense pressure from their peers to break away from drug addiction. The method seems to work, although critics call it brainwashing. (AP)

East St. Louis school official still in trouble

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — Charles E. Merritts Sr., school district president who has already been convicted on several extortion and kickback charges, faces still more charges in the future, federal officials said.

The U.S. Attorney's office said Tuesday that Merritts will go on trial May 27 on charges that he conspired to extort property from two area businessmen.

Merritts and five other school district officials were convicted Saturday on a total of 21 charges of extortion, kickbacks, racketeering, perjury and mail fraud.

The school district president is also awaiting trial on charges that he conspired to murder Clyde Jordan, a school board member who frequently disagreed with Merritts' policies.

Polly's pointers

Son's handiwork can be removed

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the auto manufacturers who have discontinued the use of window vents in cars. Those vents permitted one to get fresh air without drafts. — MRS. J.J.S.

DEAR POLLY — I like to keep several kinds of bread on hand to please all members of the family. To avoid the waste of having it dry out I keep the bread in my freezer and remove only the slices needed. If I need a few slices thawed in a hurry I have discovered that placing the bread on a cake rack over a pan of hot water warms the bread through without drying it out as it does when put in the oven. This is also a good way to warm dry hot dog buns. — GLADYS.

DEAR GLADYS — Your Pointer brought to mind that TV commercial sponsored by a famous chain of hamburger stores that always reminds us that their buns are steamed. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — Set those squeeze plastic tubes of hand cream, face cream, toothpaste, etc., on the TOP end when not in use. I set mine up in a corner of a box that is the right depth to hold the tubes upright and erect. This allows the last bit of the contents to work down to the end that opens. You will get several more "helpings" or uses out of the tube long after you think it is entirely empty. — IRENE W.

DEAR POLLY — The instructions that come with those miracle hand clothes brushes tell you to brush in the opposite direction in order to remove the lint. I have found that a much better way is to wet the hand and pass the brush over it in the opposite direction as that in which you usually brush your clothes. Rinse your hand, repeat, remove the lint that has collected at the edge of the brush. It is then lint free and ready to use again. — GLENNA.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — My small son smeared petroleum jelly all over a cotton bedspread. Washing did not help. What can I do? Also how do I remove chewing gum from a carpet? Any tips will be appreciated. — PEGG.

DEAR PEGG — I hope the washing has not set the stains in your bedspread. The usual treatment for removing petroleum jelly stains from washable fabric is to sponge it with cleaning fluid or let the spots soak in the fluid. When spots are removed wash in warm suds and rinse as usual.

Rub the chewing gum with ice until it "balls up" and then gently remove as much as possible. Egg white (test its effect on your carpet) will often soften gum. After bulk of gum is removed sponge with cleaning fluid and let it stand three or four minutes. Lift remainder of gum off with a dull knife. Do be careful as too much soaking might penetrate to the backing. — POLLY.

'Inner terror' haunts town

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — A "permanent inner terror" and a feeling that life has ended still grips survivors of a mine-related disaster at Buffalo Creek Hollow, W.Va., more than three years ago, researchers report.

The flood of water and coal mine refuse that cascaded down the hollow after a huge slag pile dam gave way on Feb. 26, 1972, in the wake of heavy rains killed 118 persons and left 4,000 homeless.

But it also washed away the Appalachian Valley's sense of community, leaving the survivors bitter, suspicious and lonely, the researchers said.

Speaking Monday at the 128th meeting of the American Psychiatric Association, they raised the possibility that the psychic damage might last a lifetime.

Memories of the 130 million gallons of rushing water that splintered homes and crushed people still turn up in recurrent dreams, they said.

Dr. Robert Jay Lifton, a Yale University psychiatrist known for his studies of the victims of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, said:

"The Buffalo Creek survivors remain haunted not just by death, but by grotesque and unacceptable forms of death; feel ever-vulnerable to these forms of death, and perceive their overall environment — including nature itself — as threatening and lethal, rather than life-sustaining."

The reports summarized the studies of 160 families who lived in the 17-mile-long valley devastated by the flood. They were included in a group of survivors who sued the Pittston Coal Co., which maintained the dam.

An out-of-court settlement of $13.5 million was reached last August following a landmark court decision that survivors could sue for "psychic impairment" even if they had not been directly involved or even present during the disaster.

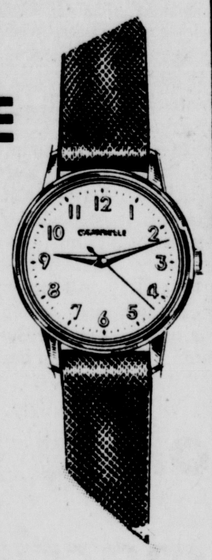

Sociologist K. T. Erickson of Yale said he found the survivors demoralized and apathetic, disoriented and convinced that the moral standards of their neighbors were deteriorating.

He suggested that one explanation was that the mining families were so closely knit in the isolated mountain community that they were left helpless when the community was destroyed.

Hearing in murder case is postponed

The preliminary hearing set for 1:30 p.m. Wednesday for Thomas B. Cline, 28, 212 East St. Louis, charged with second degree murder, was postponed Wednesday at the request of his attorney.

Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming said that Cline's court-appointed attorney, Craig Cassing, requested more time to confer with his client on the case. No date has been set for the hearing.

Cline is charged with the 3:20 .M. Saturday shooting death of Samuel A. Gravitt, 74, 330 West Saline.

Gravitt died at Bothwell Hospital Saturday morning after sustaining a bullet wound to the abdomen at the home of Mabel Richardson, 724 North Osage.

Probation revocation denied by judge

Pettis County Circuit Court Judge Frank Meyer ruled Tuesday not to revoke probation for Richard D. McCorkle, 43, East Moline, Ill.

McCorkle had pleaded giilty on Jan. 11, 1974, to a felony charge of issuing an insufficient funds check of more than $100. The charge stemmed from an incident on April 25, 1973, when McCorkle allegedly issued a bogus check for $134.81 to a food service company in Chillicothe.

McCorkle was sentenced to two years in the state Department of Corrections and then placed on two-years' probation.

Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming asked that McCorkle's probation be revoked because he had not made restitution on the check.

Circuit Judge Frank Meyer denied revocation, saying that McCorkle, in spite of medical problems, was making an effort to repay that check and others.

Wayne Carmack, 23, Whiteman AFB, sentenced to three years in custody of State Department of Corrections, was placed on three years probation Tuesday afternoon by Pettis County Circuit Court Judge Frank Meyer.

Carmack, also known as Doc Cooper, was sentenced Monday for possession of a controlled substance, LSD. He pleaded guilty to the charge on Nov. 21, but sentencing was delayed, pending a presentence report.

The original charge against Carmack was for selling LSD to a federal agent on Oct. 9, 1973, in front of the Cue Room, 604 South Ohio. The charge was reduced to possession of a controlled substance as the result of plea bargaining, according to Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming.

A motion to surpress evidence against William F. Gravitt, 29, 315 West Henry, charged with second degree burglary, was heard and taken under advisement Wednesday morning by Judge Meyer.

Gravitt was arrested by Sedalia police March 4 and charged in connection with the Feb. 28 burglary at Hubbard School, Osage and Henry. Gravitt allegedly took several frozen meat items from a freezer in the school's kitchen.

In his motion, Gravitt maintained he was subjected to "in-custodial interrogation by members of the Sedalia police department" and that he was "cajoled, misled and tricked by Det. Sgt. Perry Franklin into believing that if he confessed, no prosecution would be initiated."

Gravitt remains in the county jail in lieu of $3,500 bond.

Waste disposal act approved in Senate

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A new Solid Waste Disposal Act, a watered-down version of an earlier bill, was given final approval in the Missouri Senate today and sent to the House.

New Zealanders change first impression of U.S.

"Before we came to this country as members of the New Zealand Group Study Team, we had formed some prejudices from reading in the news media of crime, scandal in high government and the Vietnam war situation, but that was soon dispelled once we set down here in the midwest section of your country and visited with your people. We found a tremendously warm hospitality; we found a people who have a love of family and a love of country; we found that you midwesterners are much like our own New Zealanders," Colin Croudis, 32-year-old secondary school teacher from Te Awanmutu, New Zealand, told 120 Rotarians, their wives and guests Tuesday evening at a dinner meeting of the Rotary Club at Walnut Hills Country Club.

The visiting New Zealand group includes John Milne, 28-year-old agricultural scientist, from Hamilton; William Mouat, 27-year-old sheep and cattle farmer, from Mangaorapa Station, Porangahau, Hawke's Bay; John Rennie, 30-year-old chartered accountant, from Tokoroa; Stuart Willis, 32-year-old local government executive, from Whakatane; and group leader Gordon Black, partner in a chartered accountancy practice in Hastings, and a member of the Rotary Club of his community.

The audience learned from them that:

✔ New Zealand has a population of 3 million people, and about 45 per cent have an English background.

✔ It has a state operated Democratic socialist form of government which provides free education, hospitalization, dental care, sick benefits, orphan and widow care as a social services package financed by income tax which costs about $200 annually for every citizen.

✔ That education is not specialized as it is here, but general in nature, since New Zealanders believe the employer should offer the special training he needs in his operation.

✔ That New Zealand prizes its productive land highly and laws prevent development of productive land for any purpose other than agriculture.

✔ That the average farm has 800 acres and the major exports are mutton, lamb, cattle and cheese. Mouat stated he operates a 5,500 acre farm station and in a good year will fatten 23,000 lambs for market.

✔ That the temperature in northern New Zealand is not over 85 degrees, and that everyvne living there is no more than 70 miles from the sea and that New Zealand has more coastline than the U.S.

Black, as the anchor man on the program, noted "the group study team is in this country on an exchange basis under Rotary International funding and that the group hoped to leave behind international goodwill and friendship and carry back to New Zealand the story of friendliness and hospitality they found in this great country."

Presiding was William Hopkins, club president, who presented a plaque to William Grossmiller as the "Rotarian for the month of April" for his outstanding planning and work in connection with the Rotary Conference held here early in April.

Merle Vaughan presented Robert Heitmeyer, area youth specialist for the University of Missouri Extension Service, as a new member. Mrs. Heitmeyer placed the Rotary pin in her husband's lapel.

The Helen G. Steele Music Club barber shop quartet, under the direction of Mrs. Donald Barnes, presented several numbers at the opening of the evening's program. Members of the singing group, in additionto Mrs. Barnes, were Pat McLaughlin, Sally Fisher, Nancy Capps and Charlotte Parker.

Guests, other than wives of Rotarians, were Mr. and Mrs. Delwood Mather, with Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Fisher; Mrs. Henry Harris, with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Harlan and Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Eberting, Clinton Rotary Club. Eberting is district chairman for the group study exchange program.

Church requires 'cooling off' for youths seeking marriage

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — In attempt to curtail the rising divorce rate, the Roman Catolic Diocese in Orlando has set a three-month cooling off period for anyone under the age of 19 wishing to marry in the church.

Under the "Youthful Marriage Policy," priests also will scrutinize teen-agers to see if they are mature and financially stable enough to make a success of marriage.

Adopted Tuesday by the diocese's policy-making board, the program was drawn up by a committee of priests and laymen headed by the Rev. John Bluett, director of the Diocese's Family Life Department.

The diocese, which includes 13 Central Florida counties, has more than 140,000 members.

Father Bluett estimated that about 100 to 120 cases a year would be affected by the policy.

He said the right of couples to marry who gave evidence "of required minimal maturity" would be guaranteed.

"The right to marry is a natural right of high priority," the committee's said. "It is not, however, an unrestricted right. Both Church and State can establish legitimate restrictions.

"Such restrictions must be founded in serious causes, whereby the proposed marriage is shown to be in conflict with Christian revelation, or posing a threat to the common good of society."

The committee said the goal is to fight divorce "where it begins — in hasty or ill-advised marriages, particularly among the young."

It said 33 per cent of all divorced couples are teen-agers and "seven out of 10 marriages involving teen-agers end in separation. In teen-age marriages where pregnancy was a factor, 90 per cent break up....

"Many priests feel helpless where the legal and the minimal spiritual requirements are met by the couple, but their youth and-or pregnancy factor leads the priest to believe that marriage has little hope for success."

Under the policy, couples seeking marriage "when either party has not yet reached his or her 19th birthday" are required:

—To wait three-months from the time of their first interview with a priest to the date of their marriage.

—Have in-depth interviews with the priest dealing with family background, parents' attitudes, desire to escape an unpleasant home situation, pregnancy, degree of infatuation.

—To submit to a study by the church of the couple's financial status and its ability to handle money.

—To attend special instruction and counseling sessions.

—To get written permission from the diocese's marriage court before the ceremony could be performed.

—To delay setting a firm wedding date until complying with all sections of the marriage policy.

Fight for women in academies will be carried to House floor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fight to open the three U.S. military academies to women will be carried to the House floor but a congressman leading the effort says he'll probably drop his bid to make women eligible for combat as well.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., lost the fight in the House Armed Services Committee on Tuesday but said he can win in the full House.

His amendment to eliminate the ban that keeps women out of the academies and certain military duties, including combat, was tabled by the committee 24 to 12. Stratton said that when he goes to the floor, he'll probably drop the part about the combat.

"People don't want to see women on the battlefield," Stratton said. "When people think of combat they think of women shooting rifles in foxholes and that is hard to visualize for some people."

He said he does not favor it himself and that under Army, Navy and Air Force definitions of combat, the women would be Navy ship officers, pilot instructors and missile silo officers.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., also said combat was the real issue in the committee vote.

"They're afraid of the next election," she said. "They want to be very careful they don't say something that will come out as putting women into combat."

Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., said he favored admitting women to the academies but proposed an amendment that they be required to meet the same physical and mental standards as men.

"If you're going to lower standards for officers of the United States, Mao Tse-tung might be correct when he says the United States is a paper tiger," Ichord said.

Stratton's amendment was tabled on a motion by Chairman Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., of the committee's manpower subcommittee.

Nedzi said it was not a matter of sex discrimination but of studying the potential impact of the amendment.

"I believe this will stimulate lawsuits to establish quota systems and affirmative action that may throw the whole military education system out of whack," Nedzi said.

He said his subcommittee will study the issues and report out a bill as soon as it can. Stratton said he hopes the House will already have voted to open the academies to women by then.

His amendment was to a $32-billion weapons bill that may go to the House floor early next month, and that is when Stratton said he will try to get approval for admitting women to West Point, the Navy Academy at Annapolis, Md., and the Air Force Academy in Colorado.

The Senate approved a bill in the last Congress to admit women to the academies but would have to approve a new bill for this Congress.

Rains hamper Waynesville area

WAYNESVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Heavy rain sent a wall of water through some shops in the downtown area and flooded a trailer court at the north edge of Waynesville Tuesday night.

Authorities said water built up to a depth of five feet in three stores in the business district and washed the front sections out of the buildings—a shoe store, dress shop and cleaning shop. A half dozen other businesses were damaged.

Two trailers were washed off their foundations at the Dogwood Hills Mobile Home Park and about a dozen others suffered water damage.

Waynesville and the nearby Ft. Leonard Wood area were hit with 4.75 inches of rain in about 2½ hours, according to a gauge at the military base. Most of the rain fell in a 30minute period between 8:30 and 9 p.m.

Patrolman Ralph Cook said there were reports of some minor injuries but no one was hospitalized. He said the Red Cross estimated damage at $300,000.

He said the flash flood was caused by runoff water that ran into the valley where Waynesville sits.

Authorities said one man rescued his wife by grabbing onto her hair when she was swept off her feet by a wall of water as they ran from the inundated trailer court.

Two other trailer courts at Waynesville were evacuated because of their location near the Roubidoux River, but there was no damage.

The river did rise out of its banks near Waynesville Tuesday night and sent water over Interstate 44 south of the city. The road was not closed.

Country roads in other areas of south-central Missouri were closing during the night, but a highway patrolman said the only impassable route this morning was the Missouri 8 bridge over the Meramec River near St. James.

A police officer in Waynesville said the high water "came and went" quickly, and efforts today were directed at cleaning the mud, gravel and debris from the streets.

Heavy rain was reported elsewhere in Missouri during the night. Cape Girardeau reported 2.20 inches of rain in the 24-hour period ended at 7 a.m., and 1½ inches or more fell at Kirksville, Columbia, Monett and Vichy.

During the downpour in Jefferson City Tuesday, materials used by workers repairing the Capitol roof floated down and clogged a drain pipe. Water overflowed and leaked into the north wall of the House chamber.

The door on one side of the House chamber was locked during the morning session so no one would slip in the water.

The National Weather Service said flash flood warnings would remain in effect during the day from the central areas of the state into southeastern Missouri.

The weather service said there was a chance of showers and thunderstorms today in the east, tonight in the east and central parts of the state and Thursday in the east. The extended outlook also called for a chance of rain Friday.

High temperatures today were expected to range from the mid 70s to the low 80s, with lows tonight in the 50s and highs Thursday in the 70s.

Highs during the period Friday through Sunday were forecast in the 70s.

High temperatures in Missouri Tuesday ranged from 84 at St. Joseph to 69 at Cape Girardeau. Lows ranged from 53 at Kirksville to 62 at Springfield.

Strip mining vote near

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is nearing a final vote on a bill to protect the environment against strip mining. The measure is similar to the legislation President Ford vetoed last December.

The House was to vote today on the compromise bill which passed the Senate on Monday.

It is the product of a House-Senate conference committee that resolved differences between bills passed in both chambers by overwhelming margins earlier this year.

With both sponsors and opponents of the bill predicting its easy passage, the only question remaining appeared to be whether Ford will attempt another veto. And if so, whether it can be overridden.

Stanley K. Hathaway, Ford's nominee to be secretary of interior, said Tuesday that he generally likes the bill, but economic or energy considerations might cause him to recommend a veto to Ford.

Sponsors claim they can easily muster the two-thirds needed in both houses to override a veto, while opponents say they can convince enough colleagues to switch their votes in order to sustain a veto.

The White House has not said what Ford will do with the bill once it reaches his desk, although administration officials have voiced strong reservations toward the bill that emerged from the Senate on Monday.

Collector's office open on Saturdays

Sedalia City Collector Opal Hugelman said Tuesday her office at the Municipal Building will remain open on Saturdays this month from 8 a.m. to noon to sell city auto stickers.

The office, however, will not be open May 24. Stickers are also on sale during regular office hours.

The Municipal Building will be closed Monday, May 26.

Constant concern for community's health

By KAREN FLANDERMEYER
Living Today Editor

"As a little girl, I used to stand and watch them unload the patients from beautiful horse-drawn amublances," Mrs. Dorothy Potter smiled as she discussed her early memories of health care in Sedalia recently.

But other memories weren't so pleasant, like 20-hour duty, as she and others recalled sights and sounds of Sedalia's first hospitals and doctors.

Mrs. Potter, operating room supervisor, and other Bothwell Hospital employes will observe National Hospital Week May 11 to 17. Medical persons throughout the years have lived up to this year's theme: "Constant Concern for a Healthy Community."

During the 1800s, "smallpox, typhoid, malaria, cholera and galloping consumption were the most dreaded diseases," according to Hazel Lang's "Life in Pettis County — 1815 to 1973." The cures included whiskey, sassafras tea, hot salt bags, quinine and leeches.

A railroad office building built by M-K-T became the Missouri Pacific General Hospital in 1881. The big wooden frame building, boasting steam heat and electricity, served 3,444 patients in 1887 with Dr. Willis P. King as chief of surgery. It was located on the northeast corner of Hancock and Broadway.

In 1882, Barrett Hotel, located at 20th and Grand, became the Katy Hospital. "Medical and surgical patients all the way down the Katy line came to this hospital in the days when Sedalia was a division for the railroad," Mrs. Potter said.

When the Katy Hospital burned, it was moved to Fourth and Lamine and later to Hancock and Broadway where the Missouri Pacific hospital had been.

Dr. J. W. Boger, 2803 Skyline Drive, was one of five staff doctors at the Katy Hospital after 1921. "A lot of our older doctors interned there and then stayed in Sedalia," said Mrs. Potter. Other staff doctors were Dr. E. S. Yancey, Dr. M. P. Shy, Dr. Emory Shy, Dr. J. E. Mitchell, Dr. Charles McNeil and Dr. W.A. Beckemeyer.

A separate building, called the Pest House, Mrs. Potter said, served as an isolated area for patients with typhoid and smallpox. A big stuffed bear that decorated the lobby of Katy Hospital today is displayed in the Pettis County Courthouse.

Mrs. Potter said when she thinks about 20-hour duty which was normal in the early 1900s, "It was such hard work, it makes my bones ache just to think about it."

When she tells her operating room nurses today that she slept with her patients in those days, they just can't believe it. "You slept with one eye open next to the patient on a trundle bed which scooted under his bed when not in use," she said.

And the $6 a day that she earned, "Well, that was lots of money 'cause you got paid, put your money in the bank and went home and slept. Whatever money you made you were too tired to spend."

In the 1920s when the Katy moved the railroad division to Parsons, Kan., the hospital was torn down and the ground was leased to the city to be used as Washington Park.

Maywood Hospital appeared in Sedalia in 1906 where the Armory now stands. The 18-bed hospital was named after Dr. E. A. Wood's wife, May, according to Mrs. Boger. In 1915, it was sold to the Sisters of the Incarnate Word who renamed it St. Mary's until it was closed in 1929. Dr. Archie Walter, 84, and Dr. Boger, 80, who practice at 500 West 16th, are the two surviving physicians who served on the staff of St. Mary's.

Mrs. Potter said St. Mary's operating room, which was located in the attic, lacked today's modern conveniences. "We opened windows so we wouldn't die from heat."

City Hospital No. 1, located where Bothwell Hospital now stands, was used from 1917 to 1929. The 15-bed hospital had 10 to 15 doctors on the staff, Mrs. Potter estimated.

City Hospital No. 2 was located on North Missouri in the building now used by Burt Manor Rest Home, Ray Jiedel, assistant administrator at Bothwell Hospital, said. This black hospital closed in the late 1930s, Mrs. Potter said.

What was 20-hour duty became 12-hour duty in the 1930s, Mrs. Potter said, and a few years later, duty was down to eight hours. "Intensive care has taken the place of private-duty nurses," Mrs. Potter said.

In 1930, the city of Sedalia and John H. Bothwell built the original Bothwell Hospital, Jiedel said. "It is run by a board of trustees, appointed by the mayor and approved by the City Council," he added.

"Sedalia had a lot of doctors but they never had been a unified staff. From 1935 on, with a unified staff, the hospital began to grow," Jiedel said.

Mrs. Potter estimated the original Bothwell Hospital had 40 beds with two operating rooms, a delivery room and nursery. Jiedel said it was difficult to determine the exact size because there were 8 to 10 beds in a ward in those days. The third floor served as a residence for the nurses.

During the early 1930s, there were few patients, Jiedel said. "I have no actual figures but the hospital probably averaged 10 patients a day. By 1946, when the hospital had a bed count of 100, the patient count increased 7 to 10 per cent a year."

By 1955, an addition was needed. Sedalia voters approved a north wing, the first major addition, which was completed in 1959. Further additions were made in 1961 and 1967. By 1972, the inception of a new west wing was begun and occupied in the fall of 1974.

"That brought us to a certified count of 185 beds," Jiedel said, "plus a new out-patient department."

Another hospital had a part in Sedalia's history, Woodlawn Hospital, located south of Sacred Heart Catholic Church. It was run by Dr. Robert Enochs from 1947 to 1959.

There's a big difference between the medical care provided in 1939 compared to 1975, Jiedel said. "In the 1930s, you provided bed space. In 1975, you provide sophisticated nursing care."

The sophistication comes with ultilization of equipment and preventive medicine, he said. "Bothwell's two operating rooms in 1930 had no oxygen or suction. Air conditioning was unheard of but patients got a lot of tender loving care," Jiedel said.

The advancement of medicine in the field of preventive medicine is shown by statistics. "The average stay in the hospital now is six days. Just five years ago, the average stay was seven and a half days," Jiedel said. Years ago, it wasn't unusual for a patient to stay in the hospital for two to three weeks, he added.

Forty-five years ago, people had an "insignificant" amount of health insurance, Jiedel said. Today, 95 per cent of the people who walk in the door have some form of coverage. "It's become an accepted way of life," he says.

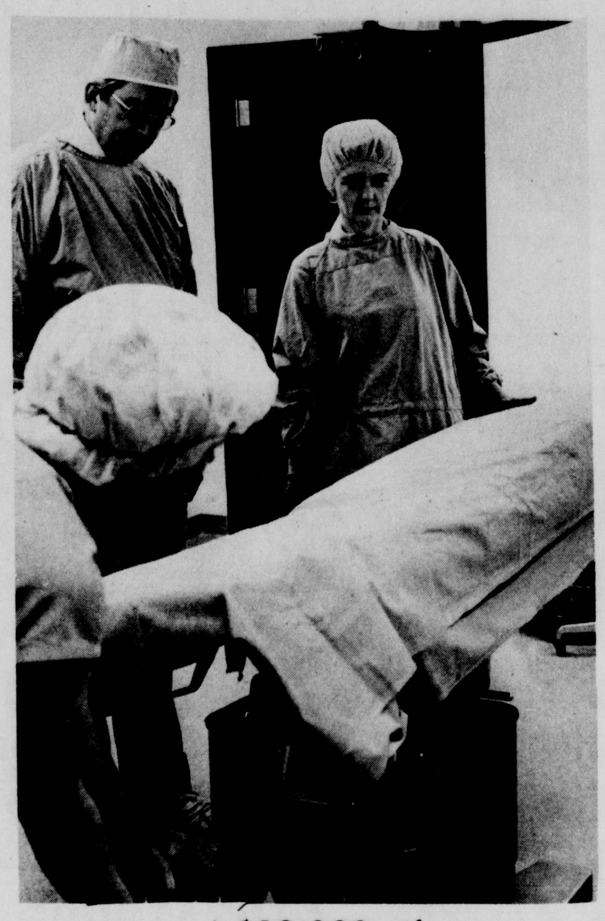

Staff has grown from 11 to 70 in 65 years, Jiedel said. There are 39 active staff, 6 dental staff, 20 courtesy staff and 5 consulting staff members.

"The first physicians on Bothwell's staff weren't all specialists," said Mrs. Potter. Specialists on the staff now include orthopedic surgeons, internists, general surgeons, gynecologists, radiologists, urologists, vascular surgeons and pediatricians.

Equipment for a nuclear medicine department, to be headed by Robert Farkas, M.D., is scheduled to arrive June 1.

"We continue to upgrade our personnel through continuing education programs," Don Feeback, hospital administrator, said. "I believe we make a good effort and our people are what make it go around."

A few people provide a big service for many. As Jiedel said, "Any hospital today worth its salt is concerned with the health of the whole community."

A $12,000 gift

Mrs. Evelyn Livingston, Bothwell Hospital staff nurse, shows Don Feeback, hospital administrator, and Mrs. Fred Davis, past-president of the Auxiliary, how a surgical table operates. The table and all supporting equipment were presented to Feeback in the form of a $12,000 check Sunday during the Auxiliary's annual tea and will cover the Auxiliary's pledge for payment of the new table and supporting equipment. Volunteers play important role

Doctors and nurses are integral parts to the operation of a hospital. Another group of persons supplement their services however. The Bothwell Hospital Auxiliary

They recruit donors for blood drives and provide a Concern committee for care of patients' families during emergencies. "Another group of ladies just sew," Mrs. W. C. Askew, publicity chairman, said. "Children under 11 years of age are given a hand-sewn toy when they enter the hospital and each new baby is given a bonnet to wear home."

The Auxiliary also raises money. In the past year, it was to the tune of $12,000 to cover a pledge for payment of a new surgical table and all supporting equipment. The check was presented to Hospital Administrator Don Feeback Sunday during the Auxiliary's annual tea.

The purchase was made possible by more than 5,000 volunteer hours of providing a gift shop and TV service to hospital patients and holding their annual ice cream social.

"We think it's great," said Feeback. "Here's 206 ambassadors from the hospital from all areas of the community. The patients benefit from their desire to help people. It's money for the hospital that wouldn't have been there without them."

In other business, Mrs. Roger Garlich was installed as Auxiliary president for the coming year by Feeback. Other officers installed were Mrs. W. C. Askew, vice-president; Mrs. Richard Dean, secretary; and Mrs. Jack Blackwell, treasurer.

The Auxiliary is actively promoting National Hospital Week, May 11 to 17. During the week, Auxiliary members will be available to give tours of the hospital to groups or individuals by contacting Feeback or Mrs. Askew. "Come and see the facilities that are here for you," Mrs. Askew said.

A Doctor's Day was held March 28. To show appreciation for other hospital employes, the Auxiliary will distribute potted plants to each employe Wednesday, courtesy of the Auxiliary.

Candy Stripers, sponsored by the Auxiliary and supervised by Gayle Homan, also volunteer their time and services to the hospital. Auxiliary Pink Ladies and Red Cross Gray Ladies deliver flowers and mail, and write letters for patients.

"These groups play an important role in public relations and fund-raising efforts for the hospital," Feeback said. "Everyone appreciates the volunteer effort."

Supermarkets increase size

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Bigger stores, more coupons and electronic gadgets at every turn.

That's what consumers can expect to find at the supermarket in coming months, according to experts at an industry convention here.

The annual report of the Super Market Institute, presented Monday and based on a survey of 11,000 stores with annual sales of some $35 billion, indicated:

—There were about 2 per cent fewer supermarkets at the end of 1974 than there were a year earlier, but there was about 3 million more square feet of floor space, indicating a trend toward bigger stores. The statistics on store closings did not reflect the recent decision by A & P, the nation's second largest chain in terms of sale, to close more than one-third of its 3,600 outlets.

—Coupons and other discount operations are gaining ground, but trading stamps are losing. Fifty-two per cent of the stores surveyed by the institute said they were putting more emphasis on coupons; 48 per cent described themselves as discount operations; and only 17 per cent were offering trading stamps, a decline from the previous year.

—The average customer spent $8.23 on each trip to the supermarket last year. That was 10.2 per cent more than the previous year, but inflation ate up the increase. When spending was measured in real dollars, the amount of the average transaction declined more than 18 per cent.

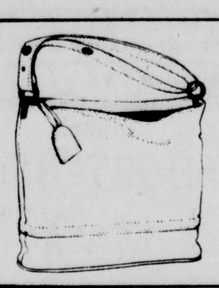

—Supermarket profits were at their highest level since 1971, representing 4.1 per cent of total assets, compared with 2.5 per cent in 1973, 4 per cent in 1972 and 5.3 per cent in 1971.

—The supermarkets' net profit before taxes last year was equal to 1.8 per cent of sales, the highest in five years. After tax figures were not available.

Scientists monkeywith shortage

FREDERICK, Md. (AP) — American scientists, facing a monkey shortage, have embarked on a plan to make the United States self-sufficient in the production of nonhuman primates for laboratory experimentation.

Speaking before the National Cancer Institute's Cancer Research Safety Symposium on problems in primate procurement, quarantine and research, Dr. Charles W. McPherson said foreign monkey supplies will be more costly and harder to obtain in the future.

McPherson, chief of the Animal Resources Branch of the National Institutes of Health, told the seminar at Ft. Detrick that a program is underway to reach an immediate goal of 50 per cent self-sufficiency in primate production by U.S. breeding facilities.

He said domestic production is now less than one third of the number used in American laboratories.

About 35,000-40,000 monkeys are imported annually from the Old World for laboratory use and 15,000-20,000 from Latin America, according to McPherson. He said most are caught in the wild.

This must change, he said, because of the destruction of wild monkey habitats, hunting monkeys for food, lower primate export quotas and wildlife conservation in traditional monkey-exporting countries.

Brazil, a large country rich in primates, has banned the export of wildlife, he said, and India has reduced its export quota for Rhesus monkeys from 50,000 to 30,000. America gets 15,000 of the Indian monkeys.

As a result of the cutbacks, researchers are sharing primates, an activity researchers once felt was unethical.

Primates raised in captivity are better qualified for experiments, McPherson argued, because environmental conditions can be standardized and controlled in captivity.

Kids save old west paper

By BILL ROBERTS
Associated Press Writer

TOMBSTONE, Ariz. (AP) — The Tombstone Epitaph, a lengendary frontier newspaper which chronicled the Old West's shootouts, is winning its struggle for survival, thanks to 13 University of Arizona students and their professors.

"These so-called kids have given us older persons some insight into their ability," says Mayor Jack Hendrickson, owner of the Lucky Cass Restaurant here. "It seems some of these kids have more ability than us."

Earlier this year, the weekly Epitaph came dangerously close to publishing its own obituary. Tombstone, once a colorful mining city of thousands, had dwindled to little more than 1,000.

For the Epitaph, that spelled declining revenue and a local circulation of barely 300.

The first issue of the Epitaph hit the bustling streets of Tombstone on May 1, 1880. For decades, it covered the adventures of pistoleros and lawmen, including Wyatt Earp, from a rambling adobe building not far from the O.K. Corral.

Today, University of Arizona students work from an office at the Chamber of Commerce, sending their stories back to the Tucson campus for editing and eventually to a commercial printer for publication.

The new arrangement dates to early this year, when the skidding economy forced newspaper owner Harold Love of Detroit to stop the weekly publication.

He donated the paper's name to the university journalism department in February. In return, 13 students in the department's community newspapers project class began publishing it biweekly.

The university does not accept display advertising and gives the paper away free of charge, depending on grants and money within the journalism department budget to finance the operation.

"It's strictly a local newspaper," says instructor Phil Mangelsdorf. "Right now we don't take advertising, although free classified advertising is accepted."

Mangelsdorf says he feels his department has enough money to keep the paper going for a year and should be able to arrange financing to continue it after that. Meanwhile, his students are receiving valuable experience, he says.

The latest issue of the paper, the fifth since students took it over, came out May 2. That's the newspaper's 95th birthday.

Recession hampers work of new black capitalists

By CHRIS J. HARPER
Associated Press Writer

Black capitalism, the glistening hope of the civil rights movement, has been staggered by the economic recession in the United States.

"It's like taking a baby and subjecting it to extremely cruel and unusual punishment," said Richard Hayes, director of the Interracial Council of Businesses in Los Angeles.

Throughout the country black-owned businesses have been faltering because of inflation, an inability to obtain loans and unemployment exceeding 13 per cent among the nation's blacks.

A recent survey for the Black Economic Research Center, a private New York company, reported that 18 per cent of black businesses failed last year. That figure compares with less than 1 per cent for small businesses throughout the nation.

The most recent cumulative statistics, a 1972 U.S. Bureau of the Census report released last December, recorded 195,000 black-owned businesses in the nation or about 2 per cent of all U.S. firms. That represented a 19 per cent gain from the last report in 1969.

Since 1972, however, the situation has changed dramatically. No one really knows the extent of the dilemma, but retail businesses, which represent about two-thirds of black enterprises, seem particularly troubled, said Earl Graves, head of Earl Graves Ltd. of New York.

"If in the white community it is a recession, in the black community it is a depression," said Graves, whose company publishes Black Enterprise magazine. "As far as starting up new businesses, it has come to a complete halt."

Although economic upheaval has battered black automobile dealerships, service stations, construction companies and small retailers, many larger businesses also have been hurt, he said. Thirteen of the 100 largest black businesses in 1972 have since folded.

In Los Angeles, the failure rate for manufacturers has increased 75 per cent from March 1974 to March 1975, said Hayes of the Interracial Council of Businesses.

"The minority businesses here are baby businesses — most just two or three years old," he said. "In Los Angeles, they began struggling in the bad inflationary period and now they are facing this."

The analyses of the dilemma are varied. Most experts blamed the nation's economy.

Others said the recession has exposed more fundamental difficulties in the management of black business.

The prospects for recovery are uncertain. Analysts said the recession hit minority businesses harder than other companies. Their ability to rebound from economic hardship isn't clear because of the time needed for a financial upswing to filter down to smaller businesses.

"Right now, we're just trying to help some of the businesses survive," said Joseph J. Luna, a spokesman for the Small Business Administration's minority program.

Luna said the high unemployment rate among the nation's black population has forced many retail businesses to close.

"You've got a lot of black-owned businesses in minority areas. With high unemployment, the purchasing power has deteriorated," he said.

Tight money and high interest rates also have hampered the black businessman's ability to raise capital and weather the financial crisis, he added.

But Luna said banks are starting to give added financial backing to minority businesses as the monetary supply loosens and interest rates fall. Still, he said, it will take about six months before the situation improves.

A Chicago real estate and mortgage investor, Dempsey Travis, said the difficulties go much deeper than the nation's economic woes.

"Unless blacks get the kind of managerial expertise to run more than 'Ma and Pa' businesses, we're going to fail," said Travis, president and chairman of the board of Travis Realty Inc.

Travis, whose company recorded sales of $5 million last year, said whites should not be excluded from employment in a black-owned firm. Five of the 35 employes in his real estate business are white, including the vice president for property management.

"We should have whites who have capabilities. I've always had whites in my business," he said. "If I were going to wait around until blacks could fill all of the necessary functions, I would have to wait until I was 75. Are you going to conduct a business that is going to be serviceable to the black community in 1975 or in 2020?"

Booth is in new location on West Main

The Booth Appliance and TV Service Co., formerly located at Main and Ohio and at 820 South Engineer, has moved into a consolidated location at 105 West Main which will house both the firm's TV and appliance repair divisions.

The firm was founded eight years ago by C.T. Booth and was originally located at 820 South Engineer. Following the expansion of the company's television repairing business, that particular part of the company's operation was transferred to a separate location at Main and Ohio.

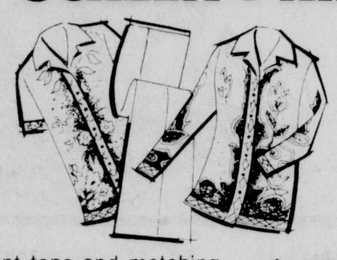

"Now, we've got everything together under one roof again," commented store co-owner Carl E. Vannoy, who, with Larry C. Kelle, purchased the business from Booth last year. "This way, people won't have to be running from one location to the other. Everything's all together again and we've got more room than we've ever had."

The building, which formerly housed the Western Auto store here, is approximately 40 feet by 100 feet.

Commission names new officers

The Sedalia Human Rights Commission Tuesday night elected its officers for the coming year and discussed an alleged incident of discrimination.

Officers elected were: Dr. John Owens, chairman; Elaine Ray, vice-chairman; and Mrs. Doris Marino, secretary.

Regarding the incident of alleged discrimination, the commission scheduled a special meeting for 7:30 p.m. May 19 at the Municipal Building to discuss the incident in further detail.

A committee of three commission members were to check the police report on the incident Wednesday morning. The members of that committee are Owens, Mrs. Marino and Ms. Nell Middleton.

Chandler Purnell, commission member, who witnessed the incident, told the group R. V. Draffen, 64, 624 North Washington, was accused by Sedalia police of driving while intoxicated and later arrested for general disorderly conduct.

Commission members decided to take no formal action on the incident until they discuss the matter with Draffen.

According to one report, police were looking for a green pickup truck allegedly driven by an intoxicated person. Draffen was driving a blue pickup when he was stopped. Purnell said Draffen apparently became angered at police questioning, and as a result was charged with disorderly conduct. Three commission members said they planned to check police records in the case, but no decision was expected Wednesday.

In other business, Owens asked members to study state statutes regarding human rights. He suggested the commission look into developing "a prototype for a human rights ordinance," so that if the city should, in the future, decided to adopt such an ordinance, the prototype would be available.

Owens added that it probably would be along time before such an ordinance would be requested of the City Council.

The commission also welcomed two new members, Harold Vogel, who is prelacing Wayne Kitchen, and William Smillie, who replaces former chairman Robert Moore.

Betty Ford praised for ERA efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford was praised by women leaders for her efforts on behalf of passage of the Equal Rights Amendment.

The President's wife told members of four government advisory committees on the status of women that she believes the effort to pass the amendment will be successful.

Asked if she thought ERA was dead for this year, Mrs. Ford declared emphatically, "No." She added: "I never give up — I'm still working on it."

The ERA would amend the Constitution to ban sex discrimination. Thirty-four states have ratified the amendment so far, but approval of four more states is needed prior to March 1979 before the amendment can be adopted.

Safety measure

A. H. Duchone, director of the Sedalia Community Center, stops by the new exit sign and driveway built last week at the center. The city paid $300 to have the driveway built in order to help prevent accidents on the center's lot.

Donation made by citizens group here

A contribution of $25 to the local Salvation Army, to permit a youth to attend the Salvation Army summer camp, was authorized at a meeting last Friday of the North Side Citizens Association, at the Quinn Chapel A.M.E. Church.

The group earlier had donated $15 to the local University of Missouri Extention Center to allow a child to attend the Show-Me Opportunity Camp this summer.

Q — Three persons charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI) were convicted of careless and imprudent (C&I) driving after the charges against them were reduced in Municipal Court on April 25. Under what circumstances is the judge permitted to reduce a DWI charge to C&I? — L.M.C.

A — Hot Line learned that 11 of 141 cases handled in Municipal Court from Jan. 3 to through May 2 were reduced from DWI to C&I. Of the 11 cases, two were reduced because the defendants' blood-alcohol content tested less than .10 per cent, the minimum level to be listed as legal intoxicated in Missouri. The nine remaining cases represent only about 6 per cent of all cases handled in that period.

City attorney Robert Liston said that cases are reduced only on the recommendation of the arresting officers or if the judge finds the offense falls within a lesser included offense. Liston said he had noted no abuse on the discretion of the officers involved and that reasons for reductions are stated in open court.

It was noted by Liston that Judge Jack Cunningham encourages such defendants, as a further deterrant to attend counseling sessions with Dick Battles, Sedalia-Pettis County counselor on problem drinking.

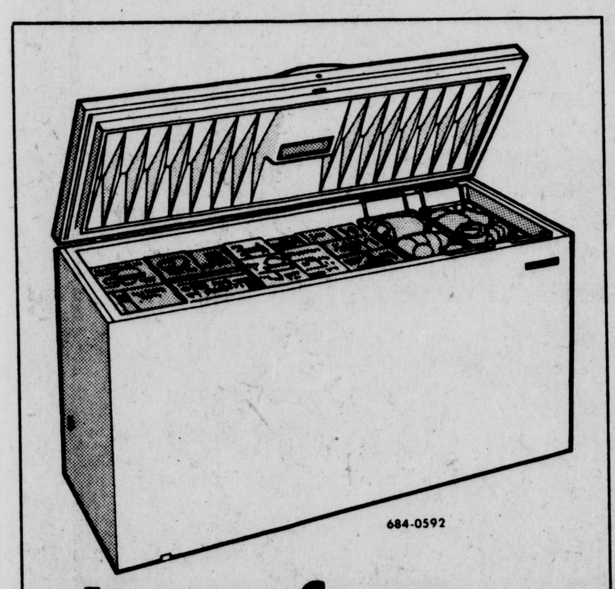

Q — Recently the pilot light on our water heater went out and I called Missouri Public Service Co. and was told that there would be a charge of at least $25 to light the pilot. The company formerly made no charge for this service.

With the many increases in rates they have received, why did MPS discontinue this reasonable service? — J.E.N.

A — Walter Savio, district manager for MPS, told Hot Line the free service has not been discontinued, rather a time limit has been set on it in order to cut expenses for the company.

Your pilot light would have been lit without charge between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. on any day Monday through Friday, or during normal working hours, he said.

The $25 charge is now levied on service calls after 5 p.m. on weekdays, and any time on weekends, Savio said, because workers are guaranteed at least two hours of overtime pay for making such a call.

Alleged election abuses are probed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State elections officials are beginning preliminary investigations into alleged campaign finance law violations in Kansas City, Independence, Columbia, Bridgeton and Deepwater, the executive director of the Missouri Elections Commission said Tuesday.

Director Al Kemp said complaints have been filed regarding races in each of the locations, but refused to identify the accused or those levying the complaints, saying, "We can be getting into a whole new area of campaigning where somebody loses an election and tries to smear his opponent."

Kemp said the elections commission staff will present a preliminary report to the commission on May 30 so the commission can decide whether to pursue the accusations further.

The campaign law, approved by voters last fall, provides that any successful candidate who is found by the courts to have willfully violated the law may lose his office and a special election be held to fill his place.

"It is intended that this remedy be imposed freely in all appropriate cases to protect the right of the electorate to an informed and knowledgeable vote," the law says.

It also requires that candidates disclose thier sources of income and—if they spend more than $500 on their campaign—their political contributors.

Here are the complaints lodged with the commission:

—Kansas City mayoral race: Candidate did not report nonmonetary corporate contributions.

—Independence: Anonymous persons distributed letter urging the defeat of a city council candidate. The expense of the letters was not accounted for.

—Columbia: City council candidate did not fully disclose his income.

—Bridgeton: Violations for not reporting a non-monetary corporate contribution (postage), failure to report a committee contribution and failure to report anonymous contributions.

—Deepwater: Candidates refused to make their disclosure forms public and locked them in safety deposit boxes.

—Other than those complaints, Kemp said the secretary of state's office has identified about 100 disclosure forms that have technical errors.

Most of the forms, he said, are on file with local officials and it is up to them to look for discrepancies.

But he said the elections commission hopes to conduct random audits of those records beginning this summer to determine their compliance with the law.

Dr. Brazos new chief of staff

Dr. John Brazos, Route 2, a member of the Bothwell Hospital staff since 1961, was named chief of staff during an election at the hospital Tuesday morning.

Other officers named were Joseph W. Maunders, D.O., Walnut Hills, vice-chief of staff; and Arturo Gonzales, D.O., Cole Camp, secretary-treasurer.

Members named to the executive committee for a two-year term were Donald Eldenburg, M.D., Route 2; and A. L. Lowe, M.D., Route 4.

Dr. Brazos took his premedical courses and received his B. S. degree from the University of Illinois. In June, 1949, he received his M.D. degree from the University of Illinois School of Medicine.

He took a one-year internship at Ancker County Hospital in St. Paul, Minn., and then entered a Wis., from July, 1954, to July, County Hospital, Milwaukee, Wisc., from July, 1954, to July, 1957. From 1957 to 1961 he was in private practice before coming here.

Dr. Brazos presently has his medical offices in Smithton.

Tax levy vote fails by one

KING CITY, Mo. (AP) — A proposed 30-cent increase in the school tax levy here failed by one vote Tuesday.

The unofficial tally was 162 in favor of the increase and 163 opposed, which represented about 27 per cent of the registered voters.

Lawrence Lamb, M. D.

Pregnancy after breast surgery

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am a 24-year-old woman with two children. A month ago I had cancer in the right breast but no spread to the lymph nodes or anywhere else. I had a radical mastectomy anyway and recovered very fast. So, to be on the safe side the doctor did a simple mastectomy on the other breast, but there was no sign of cancer. Do they call this cured or what? And, what are my chances if I become pregnant? And the child's?

Dear Reader — If there were no cancer cells at all in the lymph nodes and you had a radical mastectomy plus removal of the other breast, I would think the chances that you will have any further problems are quite small indeed.

You should ask your doctor about this as he has had the opportunity to study the slides and knows exactly the status of the removed cancer.

Assuming your interpretation is correct, and if there are no complications over the next year, I see no reason why you couldn't have a normal pregnancy without risk to either yourself or the baby.

This might be a different situation in women with more severe problems, or who required a great deal of postoperative therapy. Every case has to be considered individually.

You are quite young to have such a problem, but your case emphasizes the importance of even young women being certain to check themselves regularly and see their doctor at least for an annual evaluation.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Whoever sent in that letter about Hoosiers not ever having to walk to school is WRONG. I walked more than two miles in all kinds of weather to a one-room schoolhouse for the first part of my second grade. This was a few years later than 1912, too. The town was Jacksonville, Indiana, and we dearly loved that school.

Dear Reader — Thank you for coming to my defense. I have heard from other fellow Hoosiers who tell me that they also walked to a one-room school house. One reader said the lady must not know anything about southern Indiana. So, I guess I am properly vindicated for saying that Adelle Davis had a reason for her diet philosophy because of her farm background in Indiana before World War II. I haven't heard anything more from the lady who thought I was a provincial New Yorker who knew nothing about the farm. Of couse, she had no way of knowing that I was born and raised on a Kansas farm.

My point remains that the diet advice that was sound and important in the days before World War II is not what we need to do today. Much more of our population was rural in those days, and there was less food and more physical activity.

The reduction in fat and cholesterol in the diet, along with other measures seems to be doing something. Dr. Jeremiah Stamler, of Northwestern University, points out that the rate of deaths from heart attacks in men between 35 and 64 has fallen 8.7 per cent between 1968 and 1972. So, I am going to keep on pushing for sensible eating for 1970 not 1930.

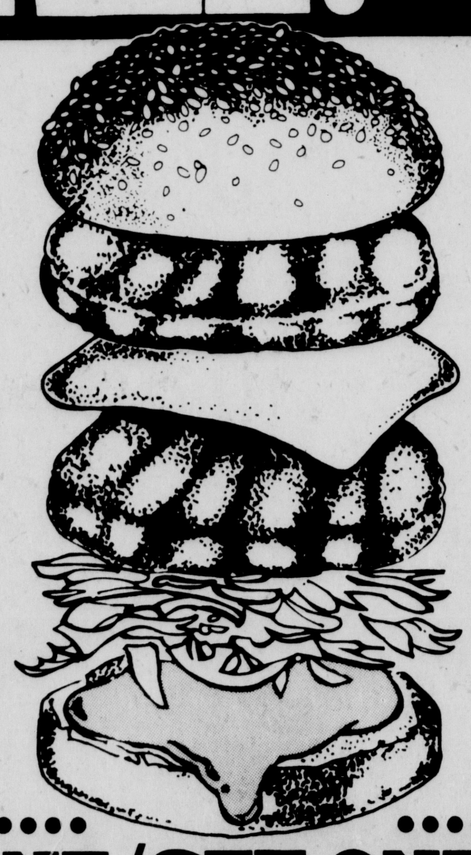

Serling expected to stay in hospital

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Rod Serling, creator of the television series "The Twilight Zone," is expected to remain in Tompkins County Hospital for at least two weeks, a hospital spokeswoman says.

The spokeswoman said Serling was "resting quite comfortably" in satisfactory condition Tuesday.

The 50-year-old science fiction writer and television producer was taken to the hospital from his home in nearby Interlaken Saturday after suffering what was diagnosed as a mild heart attack.

Second Korean war possible after Vietnam's fall

By NEA-London Economist News Service

SEOUL — (LENS) — Nowhere have the implications of Indochina been sized on so eagerly — if in different ways — as in the two halves of Korea. On the very day that Phnom Penh fell, the leader of Communist North Korea, Kim Il Sung, jumped on a train to Peking for his first visit to his Chinese "class brothers" in 14 years. He took with him his army chief of staff, his air force commander and two ministers of trade — a fair indication of the two top items on his agenda.

Kim may well be asking the Chinese for aid in liquidating an embarrassing debt of some $750 million to Western creditors, although the Chinese themselves are short of foreign exchange these days.

But a more compelling reason for his sudden trip is the more obvious one: for a man who has been obsessed for three decades with the aim of unifying his own divided country, the defeat of the American-supported regimes in Indochina must look like the greatest encouragement for imitative action he has seen in many a year.

This is plainly how South Korea's President Park sees it too. He reminded South Koreans last week that Kim Il Sung made a visit like this once before: to see Stalin in Moscow on the eve of the Korean war. (Kim is reported to be heading for Moscow again shortly after Peking.) Park has been inveighing about North Korean aggressiveness for so long now — and with such obvious ulterior motives — that many Koreans had stopped taking his scaremongering seriously. But the past week's events in Indochina and Kim' trip are bound to lend new credibility to his claim that whatever he does is justified by "a state of war."

He already had some solid evidence on his side: last month South Korean soldiers discovered a man-made tunnel running below the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea and large enough, according to South Korea's defense minister, to allow a North Korean division to infiltrate into southern territory within an hour. Another, shallower tunnel had been found last year and the South Koreans suspect that 10 similar tunnels have yet to be detected.

North and South Korea clashed twice at sea in February; the second of these clashes drew American air force Phantoms into a chase over the Yellow Sea. Incidents in the demilitarized zone are too normal to be noticed. What all this confirms is that the South Korean government has ample grounds for keeping up its guard against its northern neighbor. What it does not prove is that the threat from the north is the main reason for the rigid political clampdown in South Korea during the past two months.

In February President Park tried to disarm the growing opposition to his authoritarian rule first by holding a referendum which he duly won, the then by releasing 150 of the students, intellectuals and clergymen who had been imprisoned for protesting against his constitution. But the truce lasted barely a few hours, until the released prisoners began recounting their experiences of torture at the hands of the regime.

A few weeks later the rearrests began, and on March 19th the government passed a new law banning criticism of the government, particularly in the presence of foreigners.

This month Korea's universities blew up: day after day thousands of demonstrating students fought with riot police; three university presidents resigned, more than 20 universities suspended classes, 160 students were expelled and 31 arrested. Korea University was shut down by an unprecedented presidential decree. The next day, April 9th, in another unprecedented move, eight men who were involved in last year's demonstrations were denied their right of appeal and were summarily hanged for alleged communist activity. Later that week a student activist killed himself as a gesture of protest.

President Park's favorite bogeyman is not actually threatening to invade South Korea these days. North Korea's line has been that the road to unification lies through a revolution in the south. If such a revolution takes place, said Kim Il Sung in Peking recently, North Korea, "as one and the same nation, will not just look at it with folded arms but will strongly support the South Korean people."

The key question for both Koreas today is whether China and Russia will support the North Koreans equally strongly in any adventures they may undertake and whether the Americans will stand just as firmly behind their allies in the south.

In the short term the Indochina debacle has probably strengthened the Americans' commitment to South Korea, where they still have 40,000 troops, 80 fighter planes, and an artillery brigade with Hawk air defense missiles — plus an undisclosed number of nuclear weapons under American control. They will keep them there to reassure not only the fearful Koreans but also the nervous Japanese, who this week resurrected the old Sato doctrine that South Korean security is "essential" to the security of Japan.

The conventional wisdom since President Nixon went to Peking three years ago has been that China has opted for a period of peace, which meant urging allies like the North Vietnamese and the North Koreans to cool it.

This theory has been exploded, in so far as it ever applied, in Indochina. Can it hold in Korea? Or is Kim Il Sung in any case so caught up in his crash development plan that he is holding his own ambitions in check? It may all be settled this week in Peking. Or next month in Moscow.

Farm roundup

Milk production utter success

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dairy experts in the Agriculture Department predict 1975 milk production will rise to about 116.4 billion pounds, up about one billion pounds from last year. "Under the most favorable conditions," they said, it could go even higher.

"If large feed grain and soybean crops materialize this year and feed prices moderate, feeding rates would pick up, bringing more normal gains in output per cow," the department's Outlook and Situation Board said Tuesday.

But if "another disastrous crop like last year's" occurs, feed prices would continue high and forestall a milk production increase in the last half of 1975, the board said.

Milk production slipped from 119.9 billion pounds in 1972 to about 115.4 billion in each of the past two years. High feed costs and other expenses were mostly to blame for the cutbacks. Further, when cattle prices were high in 1973 and early 1974, many dairy farmers culled their herds severely.

The board, in a summary of a dairy situation report to be issued next week, said that herd culling lately has dropped off because of depressed prices for slaughter cows.

"Low slaughter cows prices will likely discourage herd culling throughout 1975, and the continued lack of off-farm employment opportunities may keep more dairy farmers in business," the report said.

Farm prices of milk have "shown near-average seasonal drops" since Jan. 1. The blend price of milk at the farm in April was $8.05 per 100 pounds, down nine per cent from a year earlier.

"Farm milk prices are likely to show only small seasonal drops through the flush production season (this spring) but could be above a year ago by early summer," the board said.

Officials said dairy farm production costs eased slightly in the first three months of this year, mostly as a result of lower feed prices, but were up again in April.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corn planting was only 13 per cent completed nation-wide by May 4, less than one-half the progress of a year ago, says the Agriculture Department.

Wet weather has hampered field work in many areas of the country this spring. For the Corn Belt, the delays have been particularly burdensome.

"Farmers in the North Central states, the main growing areas, were seven per cent finished, much behind last year's excellent pace of 27 per cent and the normal 16 per cent," the department said Tuesday in a weekly weather summary.

"Iowa farmers made good progress where soil conditions permitted and planting was six per cent done (by May 4), but this was sharply behind the 37 per cent of a year ago," the report said.

The weather has been a problem also in Illinois and Indiana but corn planting progress was about normal by the weekend, officials said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has gone more than one year without a single case of hog cholera, a disease which once cost swine producers millions of dollars a year, says the Agriculture Department.

If no further cases are recorded by November, the country could be declared officially free of hog cholera, officials said Tuesday. An 18-month waiting period is recommended by swine disease experts before a country is considered free of the disease.

The last outbreak was May 4, 1974 in Puerto Rico, and the last among the 50 states on Feb. 7, 1974 in Mississippi, the department said.

Onassis woman continues business

LONDON (AP) — Christina Onassis is working at carrying on the $960-million shipping empire built by her late father.

Miss Onassis, still wearing black in mourning, spent most of Tuesday talking with British oilmen.

"Although I'm a woman, I'm also an Onassis," she was quoted as telling the oilmen. "If there's anything to discuss you will deal with me."

Miss Onassis, who at 24 is probably the world's wealthiest woman, was quoted in a newspaper interview as saying she had no plans to marry the man her father reportedly chose for her — 29-year-old shipping heir Peter Goulandris.

Committee memberships changed for efficiency

The Pettis County-University of Missouri Extension Council shuffled memberships on council committees Tuesday night.

According to council chairman Dr. James Houchens, committee work with Extension Council staff specialists "has not been as effective as it could be. I don't want to put a farmer on the home management committee and a young woman on farm management," Houchens said.

Council members, therefore, were allowed to choose membership on committees they preferred. "I hope this will increase the efficiency of programs in the Extension Council area," Houchens said. He noted staff specialists would contact council members for "new ideas" and to discuss "what Pettis County needs in the area of continuing education."

In other business, Extension Council area agricultural engineering specialist Lyle Ellis addressed new members on programs of waste management and irrigation systems.

Ellis noted a sewage lagoon program for livestock farmers in Pettis County was dropped because of a "bad experience with one area farmer's program." He added, however, farmers who want sewage lagoons "will build them anyway."

Ellis pointed out a gutter-flush house used for pig farrowing and development is being built near Smithton. The system uses water to flush liquid and solid animal wastes from the house to a nearby sewage lagoon, Ellis said. The system provides "a good environment and it helps eliminate odors," he added.

Irrigation and waste management systems, however, must comply with state clean water commission regulations, Ellis said. He explained such systems must be designed so that public water is not polluted.

According to Ellis, public water is designated as surface run-off and underground water. "If the Clean Water Commission investigates your system and finds your polluting public water, you can be fined for actual or punitive damages," he said.

In other action, the council agreed to purchase a camera and several folding chairs for the Pettis County office.

According to Houchens, the purchase of folding chairs was approved by the council last year, but the office move from 319 South Lamine to 1806 West 11th resulted in a shortage of funds.

Judge refuses to halt jury probe

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A federal judge has refused for a second time to halt a federal grand jury investigation into Associated Milk Producers, Inc. (AMPI).

Chief U.S. District Court Judge Adrian Spears Tuesday denied a motion by the San Antonio-based dairy cooperative which claimed the government lacked the authority to conduct the grand jury investigation and subpoena certain documents sought by the grand jury.

AMPI had filed a motion to reconsider staying the grand jury probe. Last Feb. 19, Spears ordered the grand jury subpoena for the documents be carried out.

Ann Landers

Wife stumped over remarks to husband

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married for nearly two years. He is four years my junior but no one would know it unless somebody told. I have a good figure and keep myself in shape. This is a second marriage for both of us.

The problem is that Jack is extremely handsome and has a way of attracting every female in the place — no matter where we are. It's amazing how brazen some women can be. Time after time I have stood at his side (or within hearing distance) and listened to women gush over Jack and tell him how good looking he is, how charming, how sexy — etc. You wouldn't believe some of the dumb things that come out of their mouths. (Most of these women are married.)

What should I say to them? — At A Loss For Words

Dear Loss: Nothing. They aren't talking to you.

Dear Ann Landers: Frequently you plead for compassion for the lonely people in the world. I realize you are trying to generate sympathy and understanding, Ann, but there's a reason for everything. I wonder if you will have the courage to print this letter, which may do a lot more good than your sympathy.

Although this man has had a wife for 30 years (me) and three fine children, he is the loneliest person in town. He is sour, sullen and makes no effort whatever to extend himself. When someone reaches out to him, he's a million miles away. Everything bounces off.

I have yet to hear him give a compliment. He's always the first one with the bad news. Of course he is infallible, never made a mistake in his entire life. His only pleasure seems to be pointing out the mistakes of others. If he gets into an argument he will turn the library upside down to prove he is right. Of course he doesn't have a friend in the world. His children tolerate him but there is no love — as for me, I'm stuck.

So when people tell you how lonely they are, just remember, there's a reason for everything. Sign Me — No Mystery Here

Dear No: Too bad you two didn't get some counseling years ago. Your marriage sounds like a disaster, your home an armed camp, and I feel very sorry for all of you.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the woman who thinks she has a problem because her husband doesn't put down the toilet seat. If this is the worst thing the poor girl has to contend with in her life, she should consider herself lucky.

I am 33, hitched for the second time, and couldn't be happier. When Lee and I married I became the instant mother of his three sons. Not one of the four puts down the toilet seat and I couldn't care less.

The reason there are so many ulcer patients, migraine headache sufferers and just plain misery in the world is that people don't know what's important enough to get upset over. I learned and found — Peace

Dear Peace: Isn't it beautiful?

CONFIDENTIAL to Money Talks: Sorry, I don't buy your approach. If money talks, it should be apologizing for being in short supply at a time when most people need it so desperately.

America's war history

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

America's 12 years' fighting in Vietnam was the longest U.S. war. The following is a compilation of American involvement in major wars:

Revolutionary, 1775-1783: Began with Minutemen fighting the British at Lexington and Concord, Mass., in battle termed "the shot heard 'round the world." Virtual end of hostilities came in 1781 with British Gen. Cornwallis' surrender at Yorktown Heights, Va., but the official end came with recognition of U.S. Independence in 1783. George Washington said farewell to his troops later that year.

1812, 1812-1815: U.S. declared war on Great Britain for pressing American seamen, blockading and violating neutrality. Ended with defeat of the British in the Battle of New Orleans.

Mexican, 1846-1848: Broke out when Mexican troops crossed Rio Grande and ended with Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo recognizing the Rio Grande as U.S.-Mexican border. Mexico recognized American claim to Texas and ceded California and New Mexico for $15 million.

Civil, 1861-1865: Began with Mississippi, Florida, Alabama, Georgia and Texas seceding from Union and Confederate troops firing on Ft. Sumter, S.C. Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee surrendered at Appomattox, Va., Courthouse on April 9, 1865.

Spanish-American, 1898: Broke out after battleship Maine exploded in Havana Harbor on Feb. 15. Ended with Treaty of Paris signed Aug. 12 in which Spain granted Puerto Rico independence and ceded Puerto Rico, Guam and the Philippines to U.S.

World War I, 1914-1918; U.S. involvement, 1917-1918: Began with assassination of Austrian Archduke Francis Ferdinand by a Serbian nationalist. Congress declared war April 6, 1917, after revelation of a German diplomat's proposal for a German-Mexican alliance against U.S. Ended with German surrender and armistice Nov. 11, 1918.

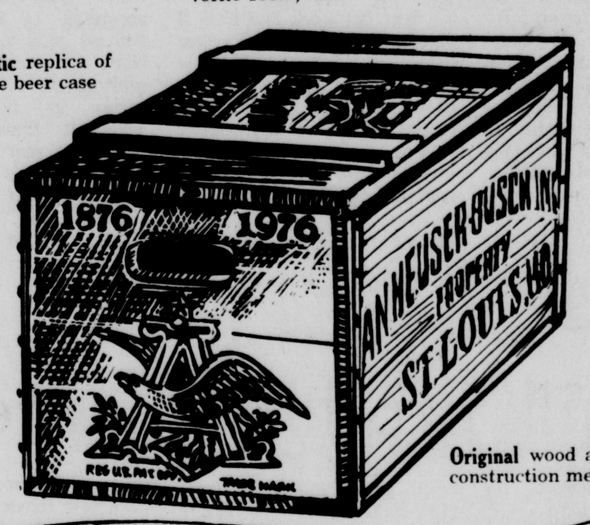

World War II, 1939-1945; U.S. involvement 1941-1945: Started with German invasion of Poland. Congress declared war after Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941. Germany surrendered May 7, 1945. Japan surrendered Aug. 14 that year.

Korean, 1950-1953: Began with President Truman sending troops to Korea after South Korea was invaded by North Koreans. Armistice talks began at Panmunjom in 1951 and armistice was signed July 27, 1953.

Vietnam, 1941-1975; U.S. involvement 1961-1973: Began with Ho Chi Minh organizing Viet Minh to fight against Japanese occupation. Ho began struggle for independence from France in 1946, French were defeated at Dien Bien Phu in 1954, and country was divided into North and South Vietnam. U.S. Military Assistance Advisory Group took over training of South Vietnamese army in 1955, and President Kennedy committed first special forces to Vietnam in 1961. Paris peace accords ending active American involvement was signed Jan. 27, 1973. Pullout of U.S. troops was completed Aug. 15 that year.

Kennedy out of '76 race? Don't bet on it

WASHINGTON — Last week was what some phrasemakers would call a "news biggie."

Rowan

So, with the Communists taking over Vietnam, and Nguyen Cao Ky fleeing into the arms of Uncle Sam, which he had called a refuge for cowards, a lot of interesting news got lost amidst the banner headlines.

Like the remarkable declaration by Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill, D.-Mass., that Teddy Kennedy is really running for the Democratic nomination for the presidency.

I didn't need O'Neill to convince me. I wrote a column recently praising Kennedy for showing guts on the issues of busing and abortion. Before my breakfast the next morning I had thank-you calls from a Kennedy aide and from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy himself.

Believe me, anytime a politician calls anybody before breakfast, he's running for something.

And before lunch I had a letter from an aide to Sen. Edward Brooke, another Massachusetts senator, who happens to be a Republican. This aide was irritated that I'd praised Kennedy when, in his view, all the Democratic liberals had left Brooke twisting slowly in the wind, fighting the Boston busing issue by himself.

That letter convinced me that Brooke, his aide and a lot more Republicans think Kennedy is running.

So Kennedy is available. No primary contests for him, probably, but he'll be sitting there between the window and the door, waiting for a draft to blow him into the White House.

I bring all this up because the season has arrived when I am asked repeatedly, "Who will be the Democratic candidate?"

Now, some of you think that if Kennedy really does want the nomination, it's his, and all other talk is academic. I don't buy that judgment, although I would concede that Kennedy is to the Democratic contest what the winter book favorite is to bettors prior to the Kentucky Derby.

But Hubert Humphrey, the old warrior, could be the favorite by post time and Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington may be choice for an upset.

Jackson has shown great speed in the early going, but since he tried to broaden his base, supporters like George Meany of the AFL-CIO have thrown a bit of mud in his face.

Humphrey's strategy is to hang back and make his move in the stretch when the front-runners falter. The prospect is that liberals will never accept Alabama Gov. George Wallace or Jackson, even as Meany and the party regulars will say, "No more McGoverns," and some rule out Kennedy because of Chappaquiddick. And they'll all beg Humphrey to come in and lead the party to the triumph that is there for the grabbing if the various factions can just get together.

Not that Wallace won't be a factor. He'll hold the Democratic convention in bedlam for a while, with his solid 25 per cent backing. But once he senses he can't win nomination for either the presidency or vice presidency, Wallace is likely to go the third-party route again, hoping to throw the whole country into electoral chaos.

Not that Sen. Ed Muskie of Maine can be ignored. He got shafted by dirty tricksters last time around, but may not recover from the fact that not as many people take him seriously now, as they did four years ago.

Eugene McCarthy? Rate him just behind Harold Stassen. Mo Udall? Jimmy Carter? Lloyd Bentsen and the sort? Nice people, but no chance for the presidency. Bentsen is a long shot for a vice-presidential slot.

But the only thing you really have to remember out of this column is that almost everyone who knows him says Teddy Kennedy is running. And even by the estimate of his critics, Hubert Humphrey is adjudged the man most qualified to be president, just as Nelson Rockefeller is viewed as the best qualified Republican.

So now that I've given you the scenario, watch the Democrats meet in Pascagoula and nominate Mickey Mouse!

Can Hanoi digest its conquest?

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — Paradoxically, in defeat South Vietnam could give Hanoi stomach cramps.

Cromley

By conventional standards, with their demonstrated organizing ability, their persistence, their psychological control techniques and ruthless methods, the Northerners should have no trouble digesting the South. They will have a powerful weapon in quickly organized street associations in which families are required to spy on each other and in other extensive informer systems they will expand in the South.

But I wonder all the same.

Witness the Soviet empire. Militarily a super power. Economically a giant. The world's third largest population, after China and India. Yet a series of Kremlin dictators, including Khrushchev and Brezhnev, have had to move in strongly with Soviet troops to put down revolts in East Germany, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. Whole populations had to be moved out of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, and loyal Russians transferred in to achieve stability in these tiny lands. The Ukraine is so unsteady under the surface that its political commissar told his bosses in the Kremlin the Czech unrest must be settled immediately or it would certainly spread to his territory.

Giant China was able to sanitize the tiny Tibetan population only by ordering all residents out of troubled areas, section by section, shooting anything left that moved, then sending in Chinese settlers.

Communists worldwide have a poor track record in taking over successfully and for long countries whose people have had a taste of freedom, however limited. Russia under the czar was totalitarian; the short intermediate Kerensky period was not felt by most. China was a collection of warlords. In North Vietnam, Ho succeeded the French, who almost a century before had suppressed all local freedom. The Communist government did not last long in Chile. The problem in East Europe have been described above.

Despite the corruptness of the Thieu government, the South Vietnamese these past two decades have known more freedom than they'd had for 100 years. Despite a capricious censorship, they have had a far greater chance to speak and write what they chose, to do the work they preferred, to travel where they wished and to associate with whom they pleased than their cousins in the rigidly structured and regimented society of North Vietnam.

The Viet Cong may be in for a ruder awakening than ordinary citizenry. They have had considerable latitude in guerrilla operations and political operation. Orders came from Hanoi. But Hanoi was far away; now it is next door.

The North, which is poor, will inevitably drain the rice-rich South, creating more hatred.

Hanoi is short of skilled political cadre, so short in fact that it has been having trouble of late in handling dissent in its own areas. There has been no danger to the government. But complaints have been stronger than Hanoi normally accepts with good grace. The war has been a heavy drain on the young, needed to back up its programs.

Remember that the Northerners for a thousand years have been better organized, more ambitious and energetic than the Southern Vietnamese. Historically, they have regularly won in battle. In recorded history, however, they have never been able to hold on to sizable amounts of the South for long.

For there is no love lost between the peoples. Even the southern Viet Cong mistrust Hanoi's regular troops. Saigon politicians mistrust even those in their midst who fled Hanoi's Communist rule. The French found it necessary to divide the land and rule the two areas virtually as separate countries.

The refugee debate dishonors America

The congressional debate over whether to open our doors to as many as 150,000 Vietnamese refugees raises some serious questions about what kind of people Americans are, after all.

President Ford has requested $507 million to pay for the resettlement of the refugees, who we whisked out of South Vietnam before its collapse.

Considering America's long history of giving refuge to those seeking a better life—the much larger migration from Communist Cuba being the latest example—one might have thought that the idea would have received fairly wide acceptance.

Instead, an uproar has ensued. There have been cries that the refugees will steal American jobs, disrupt neighborhoods or turn into lifetime welfare recipients. Some Americans have simply let it be known that they don't want any more orientals around.

Sen. George McGovern, that sterling liberal, has even suggested that some of the refugees return to Vietnam. He seems to forget that they were evacuated in the first place because they feared for their lives, and with good reason since many of them worked closely with the U.S.

The number of refugees we are talking about could easily be absorbed throughout the United States with hardly a ripple. We annually admit nearly four times this number through normal immigration quotas.

America already bears a heavy enough burden for forcing a phony ceasefire on South Vietnam in the first place, and then ignoring Hanoi's blatant violation of it while all the time refusing to give Saigon the arms with which to defend itself.

Are we now willing to compound this by turning our backs on the remnant that we saved from the tender mercies of the Communists?

We don't think Americans have changed that much so soon.

"NOW IT'S HEALING TIME."

'Federal' Indians bushwhacked foes

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — A federal grand jury has been taking secret testimony in South Dakota about violence on the Oglala Sioux reservation.

The story began at Wounded Knee, S.D., in late February, 1973. A motley band of Indians seized the town to dramatize their innumerable and timeless grievances.

The federal government eventually broke the siege and began a series of court battles against the protesters. But the battles weren't confined to the courthouse; there was also a return to the ways of the Old West.

Lawyers for the Wounded Knee demonstrators, for example, were bushwhacked on the reservation. The secret testimony alleges that their assailants were led by no less than the government-supported chairman of the Oglala Sioux, Richard Wilson.

At least four witnesses have sworn that they heard Wilson urge his followers to "stomp" the defense attorneys or their companions. On this command, according to the testimony, some of the lawyers were badly beaten and stomped in the stomach by burly, booted men. One attorney came close to being scalped.

The injured lawyers were Roger Finzel of Sioux Falls, S.D., and William Rossmoore of Stamford, Conn. Other legal workers in this group, including women, were also mobbed. A client, Bernard Escamilla, was hospitalized for two days.

The grand jury testimony attests that Rossmoore piloted some members of the legal team to Pine Ridge to investigate charges against the protesters.

After they had finished their investigation, they returned to the plane and found it riddled with bullet holes. Fearing the plane was unsafe, the testimony shows, they started to drive to Rapid City, S.D., in a convertible. But at the highway exit, they were blocked by a dozen automobiles.

A mob of 30 husky Indians poured out of the cars. "We rolled up our windows and locked our doors," swore one of the attorneys, Martha Copleman of East Orange, N.J., in an affidavit. "A man got out of the car which blocked us in front and pointed a gun, presumably a shotgun, at us through the windshield.

"People started trying to get the car doors open, and others were climbing on the hood and trunk of our car." The bushwhackers then kicked in the windshield, ripped off the top and began beating and pulling the occupants, it is alleged.

During the melee, one of the attackers slashed at Finzel's head with a knife. But a petite legal worker, Eda Gordon, yanked his head out of the knife's path, according to the testimony.

The blade sliced across her fingers, and Finzel lost a clump of hair matted with blood. Meanwhile, the 57-year-old Rossmoore was chased into a ditch and beaten.

The assailants finally left their bleeding and bruised victims with a threat to kill them if they ever returned to Pine Ridge. Ignoring the threat, they took their story to the FBI, which gave Finzel and Ms. Gordon polygraph tests. These indicated the pair had told the trurh.

Christian aid to Vietnam defended

I write in reply to your editorial of May 5, "The 'Humanitarians.'"

The three agencies you mention as among those attempting to render humanitarian aid to victims of the Communist conquest of South Vietnam are distinctly Christian agencies.

As such, their motivation for rendering aid to those who are suffering arises from the example of their Lord and his followers since, who have made no distinction in ministering to physical needs of people when it came to race, nation, creed, sex, religion, or political philosophy.

Even when the victims live under nations, creeds, religions and political philosophies which are directly opposed to and indeed even in conflict with Christianity, Christ and his followers do not withhold their compassionate help to victims in need.

Now that the U.S. government and military are unable to assist the victims of the Communist take-over, it is both unrealistic and not a bit helpful under the present circumstances, to indulge in recriminations about what should have been.

I am thankful Christians can reach beyond the barriers of Godless communism to "give a cup of water to those who are thirsty," in the name of Christ.

2414 Golf — The Rev. Gregory R. Hibbard

The editorial in question did not mean to infer that such humanitarian efforts are not commendable, which they are. It merely suggested that it also would have been "humanitarian," in the broad sense, to have made every effort to have kept South Vietnam from being overtaken in the first place. — Ed.

Medicine man claims to have cure

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Assciated Press Writer

GLENWOOD, W.Va. (AP) — Clarence "Catfish" Gray quit school in the fourth grade and lives on the basement of an unfinished house some three miles from this tiny Ohio River community.

Despite his remote location and lack of formal education, he has become one of the most sought-out residents in these parts.

Catfish is a mountain medicine man who says he firmly believes things such as ginseng, bloodroot and pipsissawa will cure what ails you.

Each month, he receives dozens of cards and letters from people who want his healing herbs. Although he laughingly calls his basement "my groundhog hole," hardly a day goes by that he isn't visited by someone who's plagued with problems that prescriptions haven't solved.

Regardless of the ailment — be it cancer, gallstones, goiters or freckles — Catfish claims he has a cure.

"Most things I can cure with my bitters, a combination of 15 herbs," he tells visitors, who are welcome at any hour of the day or night.

A small, smiling, nonstop talker, Catfish loves the woods where he gathers his roots and flowers. But even more, he loves people.

Visitors inevitably are greeted with a big smile and a glass of cold sassafras tea — and perhaps a handful of chestnuts, "the oldfashioned kind."

Special guests are offered a sip of his cancer medicine, a black liquid that tastes a little like licorice and is dispensed from a refrigerated mayonnaise jar.

"It cured the man in the next house down the road," he said, carefully resealing the lid. "He had a cancer burning out on his back. His mother died of cancer, and he had had two of them cut out but my medicine cured this one in no time. He came over later and gave me $6."

His home is divided into three rooms. One is for drying the herbs, another is for sorting and grinding and the third is for display.

"They're a quarter a bag or five bags for a dollar," he said, pointing to the neatly packaged piles of bitters, his speciality. "I don't try to make much money."

An aroma of mint fills the air. The walls are covered with hand lettered Scriptures from the New Testament and with hundreds of letters from friends and satisfied customers. They bear postmarks from across the nation and many are addressed simply to "Catfish."

Another two boxes full of unanswered requests are on the floor.

"I really don't have time to keep up with all these," he said, giving a little chuckle. "I go out into the woods three days a week and it takes time for the drying and sorting."

Although he never locks his door and has a thousand friends, not everybody looks favorably upon his herbs and mail order business, including local doctors.

Catfish's bitters, which he said he sells without a label to avoid a hassle from postal authorities, contain a combination of bloodroot, snake root, yellow root, yahoo root, sassafras bark, wild cherry bark, pipsissawa and solomon seed, among others. He claims they can cure bursitis, high blood pressure, neuritis, arthritis, kidney and gall stones "and two-thirds of heart trouble."

He treats insomnia with lobelia, impotency with baking soda — one teaspoon in a eight-ounce glass of water each night — and says a concoction of tansy and buttermilk will fade your freckles.

Catfish attends church three times a week. He never touches alcohol, tobacco or prescription drugs and frequently quotes the Scriptures he has written on his walls.

A man who practices what he preaches, he doesn't partake of soft drinks or foods that contain preservatives. He eats only one meal a day and says his diet consists mainly of milk and honey, with an occasional foraged delicacy such as dandelion roots or hickory nuts.

He is a homespun philosopher who admonishes (he's constantly admonishing something) "don't eat too much or work too hard." He and his wife raised 10 children before separating several years ago. Now, at 57, he says he's as healthy as he was at 20 and likes to do a frantic little jig to prove it.

Briles, White and Brett fuel Royals

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Tuesday night was sort of like an old home week get-together for Nelson Briles and Willie Davis.

Briles, a pitcher for the Kansas City Royals, lost but won at the same time. He gave up a two-run home run in the eighth inning to Davis but went all the way for a 6-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Briles and Davis spent most of their baseball careers in the National League and faced each other many times.

"I was trying to throw the ball away from Willie," Briles said of the home run pitch, "and it was a fast ball down and in. Obviously, it wasn't where I wanted to pitch him since it left the ball park.

"In nine years, I've never seen him miss that pitch yet."

Davis' shot over the right field fence scored Cesar Tovar ahead of him, tying the game at 2-2 and spoiling Briles' bid for a shutout.

The Royals struck right back against starter Jim Bibby, 1-3, and Steve Foucault in the last of the eighth. John Mayberry walked to start the outburst and went to second on Hal McRae's single.

Foucault relieved Bibby and struck out Harmon Killebrew but George Brett delivered a single that sent Mayberry home and broke the deadlock. Frank White followed with a hit, scoring the other runners, and wound up at second on the throw to the plate. Buck Martinez unloaded a single, driving White across with the fourth run.

The Royals went ahead 1-0 in the second when McRae singled off Bibby's glove, stole second and scored on Cookie Rojas' single. McRae started the sixth with a single, went to third on Killebrew's single and continued home when Tovar's throw to third was low for an error.

"Nellie had good command of his breaking stuff," said Royals Manager Jack McKeon. "He had good control of the game except on that pitch to Davis."

Briles, 3-0, did not think his performance was his best of the season.

"I thought I was better when I beat Oakland April 16 at home," Briles said. "In that game, I was mixing the pitches and moving the ball around better."

Briles is the first Kansas City pitcher to go the distance and win since Al Fitzmorris turned the trick against these same Rangers April 20.

"We got back to our style of play tonight," Briles said of the Royals, who had lost three games in a row and 10 of their last 13. "We had good defense, good pitching and were an aggressive ball club. This is the way we have to play to win."

If this year's performance by the Smith-Cotton boys track team is any indication of what's to come, things look pretty bright on the varsity level for Norris Kelley.

Rick Hawkins shaved one-tenth of a second off the 220 standard with his 24.0 clocking, while the 440-yard relay team of Ed Kitchen, Darrin Cline, Brian Buckner and Hawkins was caught in a time of 47.5.

Even more impressive is the fact that the 440-yard relay team, along with the 880-yard relay team went through the season undefeated. Kitchen, Cline, Buckner and Tony Carter carried the baton for the freshman Tigers in the 880.

Jenkins listed two other records — the sprint medley relay and the mile medley relay. Cline (220), Buckner (110), Greg Taylor (110) and John Moore (440) went the distance in 1:40.

The mile medley team, made up of Moore (440), Buckner (220), Clint (220) and David Dawson (880) were locked in a record time of 4:03.6.

Ed Pickens, who has worked in 32 and one-third innings for the Central Missouri State University Mules, has the team's second-best earned run average with a mark of 3.07.

Pickens, Lincoln, is one of two area pitchers listed on the Mules' 1975 roster. He has a record of 4-1 as CMSU heads down the home stretch of the season.

Bob Pledge, Sedalia, entered Tuesday afternoon's contest against Central Methodist with a 1-1 record, an earned run average of 4.26 and was averaging nearly one strike out per inning (12) in his 12 and two-thirds innings of work.

The Citizens Committee for Conservation will again begin an initiative petition drive in an effort to get a one-eighth of one cent sales tax to support an expansion of the Missouri conservation program.

In 1970-71, the group collected around 164,000 signatures on a petition, which sought additional conservation funding through a one-cent tax on soft drinks.

However, the effort was ruled invalid on a technicality and never reached Missouri voters.

The way the money is to be spent if the petition runs its course, gets to the voters and is passed was spelled out in the Missouri Conservation Department's "Design for Conservation."

G. Andy Runge, chairman of the Conservation Commission, has gone on record in behalf of the commission as being in favor of the measure.

Briefly, the Design for Conservation calls for purchasing of land for wildlife, conservation education and natural values early in the 20-year program. Emphasis would later be placed on management of lands for maximum benefit, according to the Commission.

The Citizens Committee held a number of statewide meetings in an effort to see if the enthusiasm for another petition drive existed. Despite the current economic gloom, the Committee said the meetings were optimistic in tone.

But a move by the Missouri House could eventually slow down the petition drive. Representatives passed by an 80-71 vote Tuesday a bill that would require initiative and referendum proposals to be submitted to the Legislature's Fiscal Affairs Committee. The group would have 45 days to look over the proposal and study its cost.

Petitions could not be circulated until the estimated cost of the proposal was attached to the petitions.

Anderson goes in Cards' deal

MIAMI (AP) — In a move to fill gaps left by the departure of three top stars, the Miami Dolphins have acquired veteran running back Donny Anderson as part of a four-player National Football League trade with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Coach Don Shula of the Dolphins said Tuesday that the Dolphins obtained Anderson as a partial replacement for World Football League defects Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick.

Cards' backup receiver Jim McFarland also will join the Miami receiving corps depleted by the departure of WFL-bound Paul Warfield.

The Dolphins gave up wide receiver Marlin Briscoe, who asked to be traded last year after being placed on the injured reserve list, and running back Hubert Ginn.

"We plan to use Donny in the Jim Kiick situations," said Shula. He indicated Dolphin runner back Don Nottingham would have first crack at the fullback position vacated by Csonka.

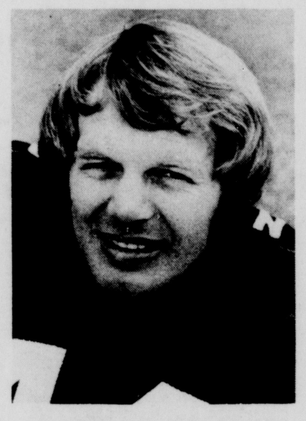

"We plan to use him (Anderson) in the passing situations. He's caught a lot of passes coming out of the backfield," Shula said. "He's probably more of a halfback but he can play fullback. We'll give him a chance to fit into our program."

The Dolphins' backfield still boasts considerable power in Mercury Morris, Benny Malone and Nottingham.

Anderson, a nine-year veteran, joined the Cardinals in 1972 after six years with the Green Bay Packers, who made him a first-round draft choice out of Texas Tech.

He led St. Louis in rushing (679 yards), pass receptions (41) and touchdowns (13) in 1973.

In his career, Anderson has averaged just under four yards a carry while catching 209 passes for 2,548 yards. Fourteen of his 56 touchdowns came on pass receptions.

Donny Anderson

The Cardinals, who already boast talented receivers, gain the impressive talents of Briscoe, who in 1973 led the Dolphins in pass-catching. That year Briscoe latched on to 30 passes for 447 yards and two touchdowns.

But after starting 1974 with a flourish, Briscoe was hobbled by a hamstring for the rest of the season and managed just two more receptions in limited action.

Ginn, originally drafted by the Dolphins, then traded to the Baltimore Colts and taken back by Miami as a free agent, served chiefly as a special teams member last year.

McFarland has played behind the Cards' All-Pro Jackie Smith at tight end for the past five years.

Andretti passes up shot at Indianapolis 500 pole

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mario Andretti may be the only driver at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway praying for rain this weekend.

The diminutive Italian-American spent a long, hard day Tuesday working to get his Offenhauser-powered Eagle into shape to qualify for the 33-car starting field in the Indianapolis 500-mile race May 25.

But, unlike the rest of the entries in the 59th Indy classic, the 35-year-old Nazareth, Pa., resident is getting his car ready for the second weekend of time trials.

With mixed feelings, he's passing up a shot at the pole position to drive this weekend in the Monaco Grand Prix on the Formula I circuit.

Andretti has been in 10 Indy 500s, winning in 1969 and becoming nationally known as an Indianapolis driver. And missing a shot at the pole isn't something he's happy about despite the fact he's putting most of his efforts into becoming the first American driver to win a Formula I race in an American car.

"Of course it bothers me, but the race (at Monaco) is all-important to us," Andretti explained. "I just have to be realistic about it.

Mario Andretti

"We knew we were going to be facing this situation, but at least it's all under the same roof," he added, referring to the team operated by former Indy winner Parnelli Jones and West Coast businessman Vel Melitich.

The darkly handsome Andretti never has started farther back than the third row of the 11-row field at Indy. But he has finished 30th and 31st in the last two years because of burned pistons and would like nothing better than to re-establish himself as one of the top threats.

"We knew well ahead of time that we were going to have to give up qualifying, but I feel if I get the car really working well I should be okay."

"Being away this weekend shouldn't detract from our chances at winning the race. Johnny Rutherford proved that last year," Andretti said.

Barry nets 36

Bulls poor road show continues

OAKLAND (AP) — Rick Barry came out a winner in "one of the most memorable games I've ever played in."

And after scoring 36 points Tuesday night, leading the Golden State Warriors to a comeback 111-106 victory over the Chicago Bulls, Barry isn't haunted quite so much by the fatal mistake he made two games earlier.

"Thank God it's even now," the Warriors' star said after doing his bit in squaring the National Basketball Association Western Conference finals at two games apiece.

The fifth game is scheduled here Thursday night.

The Bulls blew a 19-point lead in the fourth game of the best-of-seven series, but guard Norm Van Lier vowed later, "We're going to win the playoff."

Chicago has a 2-26 all-time playoff record in road game, but Van Lier feels, "We're the better team, and we're going to prove it."

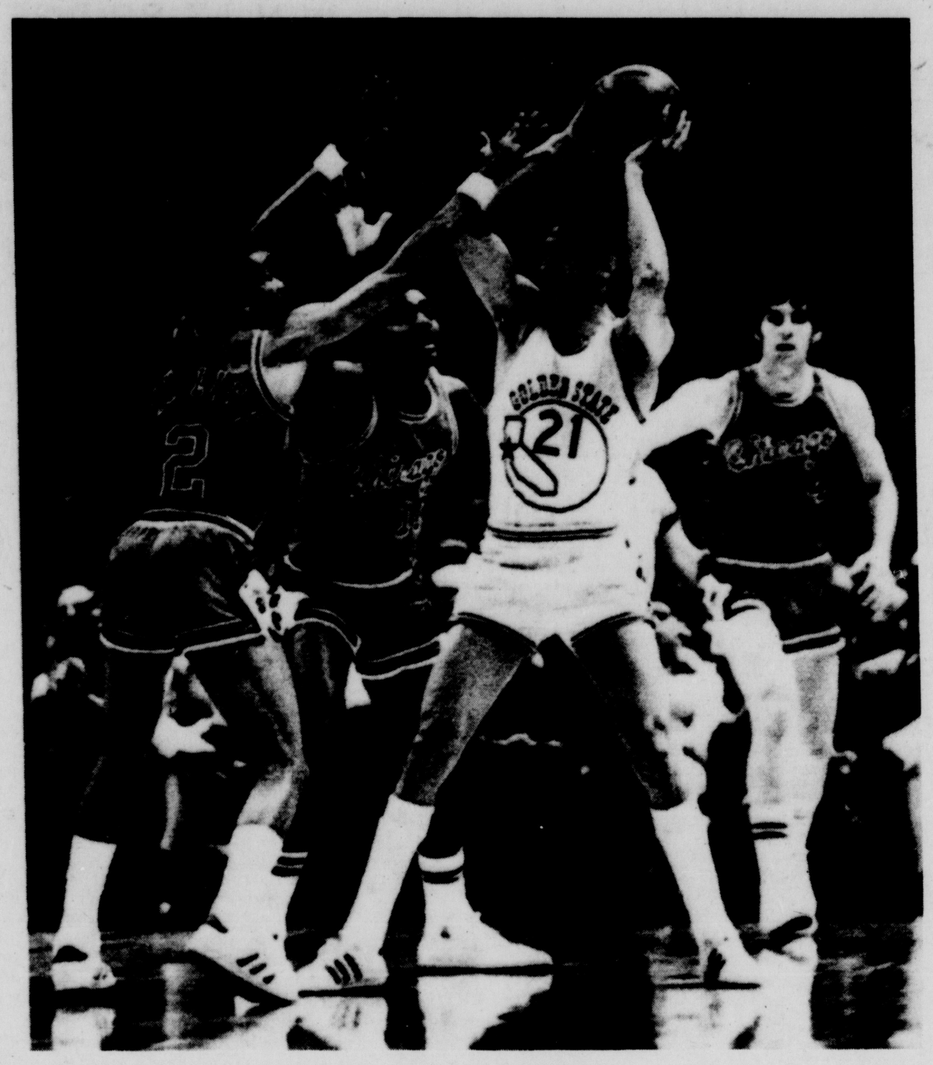

There were no flat predictions of victory from the Warriors, but Barry noted, "It's a three-game series now, and we'll have the homecourt advantage twice."

Barry, in Game 2 at Chicago, threw up a foolish shot in the closing seconds, giving the Bulls the ball and the opportunity they needed to pull out a 90-89 victory.

The Warriors' forward and his teammates started off miserably Tuesday night, trailing 35-18 after one quarter and by 39-20 early in the second period. Jeff Mullins came off the bench to score eight points in the second period, Barry added six and it was 52-50 Chicago at halftime.

The third period was even, but the Warriors overtook the foul-troubled Chicagoans in the final period. Barry had 26 of his points in the second half.

Bob Love had 27 points to lead the Bulls.

Closing in on Beard is Jerry Sloan (right). The Bulls led by as many as 19 points, but wound up losing, 111-106. The best-of-seven series is now knotted at 2-all.

Boston down 2-1

Celtics, Bullets resume playoff series tonight

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Boston Celtics, who have suddenly come alive after two lacklustre performances, seek to deadlock the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference finals tonight against the Washington Bullets.

The defending champion Celtics dropped the first two games of the best-of-seven series, the second by a whopping 25 points, but they bounced back at home Sunday to whip the Bullets 101-90.

In a basketball version of the old chicken-egg riddle, Coach K.C. Jones of the Bullets found it difficult to decide which contributed most to the turnabout—Washington's ineptness or Boston's perfection.

"They looked like the Celtics we expected to see," Jones said. "They had their break going, they used the full court press and they hit the offensive boards. They did it all.

"But we were lousy in every phase of the game—on offense, on defense and on the boards."

The Bullets trailed by only three points at halftime in game No. 3, lulling Jones into a false sense that his team had played well. But a look at the game films changed that.

"You can't hide when the films come back at you," Jones said. "And, we've seen them."

Jones was particularly concerned by the numerous Boston baskets which came on rebounds of missed first shots. For the game, Paul Silas grabbed 25 rebounds and Dave Cowens had 21.

Washington has lost only six games, counting both regular season and playoffs, at the Capital Centre this year. And only one more game in the series will be played at home after tonight. But for Jones, that doesn't make tonight's game any more critical.

"Every game is a key game, starting with the first one," he said. "And each one is more important than the ones played already."

Rene Robert guns down Canadiens in overtime

BUFFALO (AP) — It is unlikely that Rene Robert's contract calls for overtime pay and he admits he doesn't like putting in extra time on his job.

Nobody, he said of his Buffalo Sabres teammates and himself, "likes an overtime game. One mistake and you're gone."

Neither Robert nor the Sabres made a mistake in Tuesday night's sudden-death overtime and Buffalo, on Robert's low shot, defeated the Montreal Canadiens 5-4 in Game 5 of their National Hockey League semifinal playoff.

The victory gave the Sabres a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series with Game 6 to be played in Montreal Thursday night and, if necessary, the seventh scheduled for Sunday here.

Gil Perreault, center on Buffalo's high-scoring French Connection line that includes Robert and Rick Martin, won a faceoff, skated up ice with the puck and fed it to Robert.

"Before the puck is dropped in a faceoff, I usually pull back," Robert said. "But I said before this one, 'Heck. I'm going to move in this time.' I just gave the puck a beating."

Buffalo won the first two games of the series at home, 6-5 in overtime and 4-2, then dropped 7-0 and 8-2 games in Montreal.

The Sabres, peppering Montreal goalie Ken Dryden with 21 shots in the first period, scored when the game was only 2:18 old. Craig Ramsay fired the rebound of Don Luce's breakaway shot past Dryden.

But the Canadiens tied the game at 1-1 just 33 seconds later on Jacques Lemaire's fifth playoff goal.

Fred Stanfield put Buffalo in front again at 8:37, then it was Perreault's chance to snap the Connection's slump. Perreault backhanded in a goal at 17:03.

Montreal's Yvan Cournoyer scored at 19:53 to cut the Buffalo lead to 3-2.

Doug Risebrough's score at 8:40 of the second period tied the game at 3-3 and Montreal went ahead, 4-3, at 3:10 of the third on Jim Roberts' shot.

Then, with 5:25 remaining in regulation play, Ramsay scored again.

N.Y. Jets make Namath 'substantial' money offer

NEW YORK (AP) — The next move belongs to Joe Namath.

By now, his attorney, Jimmy Walsh, has conveyed to the free agent quarterback the "substantial" offer that New York Jets' President Phil Iselin has made to sign him.

How good is the offer?

"I wish," said Iselin, "somebody would offer it to me."

Iselin refused to confirm or deny published reports of a $1 million, three-year bid by the Jets but agreed that "one million dollars is a good, round figure."

Joe Willie also has the $4 million World Football League offer to consider.

Iselin termed the Jets' offer as "substantial with security to go with it."

How long will it take Namath to decide? Iselin doesn't know but he thinks when that decision is finally made the Jets will win this tug of war.

"He's not the kind of guy you can rush," said Iselin. "But I'd guess he would be with the Jets next season. We want him. He belongs in this city with our team."

Iselin said he has conferred three times with Walsh, the most recent meeting taking place one week ago when the Jets made their money offer.

Although Namath's free ugent status would permit him to negotiate with other NFL teams, Iselin said he had no indication that Walsh had talked with anyone except the Jets. "I don't think anybody can match our offer," he said.

Iselin said there is no deadline or ultimatum attached to the Jets' offer but did indicate that he wouldn't get into a sky's the limit bidding war for the quarterback.

"We want him but we're not going to give our team away to get him," said Iselin. "That wouldn't be fair to the rest of our players."

Iselin said that if the Jets fail to get Namath to sign, they would shop around for another quarterback to replace their longtime signal caller.

Houston Aeros gain 2-0 advantage in WHA play

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Coach Bill Dineen says position hockey is the only way to play the Quebec Nordiques and his defending World Cup champion Aeros are in good position after two victories over the Nordiques in the World Hockey Association playoff series.

The Aeros skated and fought to a 5-3 victory over the Nordiques Tuesday night to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven series, which will be resumed Saturday in Quebec.

"That's the only way to play them because of their great speed," Dineen said. "If you don't, they'll skate us right down the ice."

The speedy Nordiques were ready to play after a slow start in last Saturday's 6-2 loss and matched the Aeros goal for goal until Houston broke away in a rapid-fire third period, when three goals were scored in 58 seconds.

The score was 2-2 going into the final period and Houston's Gordon Labossiere started the duel with a goal at 2:06. Quebec came back 17 seconds later with one by Marc Tardiff, his second of the game.

Then at 3:04, rookie Terry Ruskowski, who reinjured his hand in a second period fight, poked in the go-ahead goal for the Aeros and Andre Hinse made it 5-3 with his fifth playoff goal at 11:08.

After games Saturday and Monday in Quebec, a fifth game, if needed, will be in Houston May 14.

Roy Ellam signs with Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Atoms soccer team Tuesday announced the signing of English League player Roy Ellam.

Ellam, 32, is 6-foot-1, 180 pounds. A defender, he has played 15 years in the English League.

Ellam is expected to play with the Atoms Friday when they open their North American Soccer League home season against the Miami Toros at Veterans Stadium.

Allen traded to Phils

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves today traded slugger Dick Allen and catcher Johnny Oates to the Philadelphia Phillies for three young players and cash.

Allen, the American League home run champion last year with the Chicago White Sox, had refused to play in Atlanta but had expressed an interest in playing again for the Phillies.

"The deal is satisfactory in view of the fact Allen did not want to play in Atlanta," said Braves Vice President Eddie Robinson.

In return for the rights to Allen, the Phillies dealt N. 1 draft pick Barry Bonnell to the Braves, along with catcher Jim Essian. The deal also included a Phillies minor league player to be named at the end of the season.

Bonnell was the top choice in last January's free agent draft. The outfielder hit .350 for Ohio State last season and currently is playing in Spartanburg in the Philadelphia farm system.

Essian hit .282 last season for Toledo in the International League.

Robinson said he had been negotiating with the Phillies since they claimed Allen on waivers.

Opening lead — 4 ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The "C" in ARCH stands for Count your winners and losers. Sometimes the total doesn't come to 13. Thus you can count 11 winners after the spade opening. Two in spades and three in each other suit. The three in clubs come from the "R" for Review the bidding which marks East with the queen of that suit as part of his opening bid.

When you count losers you are looking at two aces and three spades for a total of five losers. This makes a total of 16 tricks. A further study shows that if you win the first trick with your ace of spades over East's king you will knock out one of East's aces. He will lead back a spade. West will let you win that trick. Then when you knock out the other ace, the three spade tricks will be taken against you before you can score your own tricks.

Now you come to the "H" or How can I make this hand?

The answer is you can make it by changing your count of both winners and losers. Obviously, when you Analyze the lead you assume that West has led fourth best of a five-card suit headed by the king or queen. Your Review of the bidding marks East with both aces. Thus, you let East hold the first spade and West the second one. Now the defense has two spade tricks, but can't get a third. You have time to knock out both aces and make your contract.

GOP leaders plan Ford's race

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of top Republicans is meeting to start planning President Ford's 1976 campaign after the President made his firmest declaration of candidacy to date and outlined a platform for his nomination and election bids.

Dean Burch, the former Republican national chairman who is leading the initial organizing effort, said in an interview that today's session will discuss "the whole gamut" of pre-campaign matters.

These will include creation of a formal Ford campaign committee and selection of a campaign manager, development of fund-raising plans and an overall strategy including which presidential primaries the President will enter next year.

Ford told his nationally broadcast news conference Tuesday night that he is surprised at the continued skepticism about his 1976 political plans. "I will be at the proper time a candidate in a legal sense and no one should feel otherwise," he said.

The President said "I believe that I have the best opportunity to solidify the Republican party" to battle the Democrats. He made clear he will campaign for "a continuation of the basic policies of the last eight years" and will defend the way GOP administrations handled the Vietnam war.

"A Republican administration ended the war in Vietnam," Ford said. "They withdrew 550,000 American military personnel. They brought back all of the POWs."

Vietnam, and the U.S. evacuation that accompanied the final collapse of the American-backed government in Saigon last week, were a recurrent theme at the President's news conference, his first in a month.

Ford said:

—Ambassador Graham Martin should be praised for carrying out "a very successful evacuation" from Vietnam, rather than criticized by "Monday morning quarterbacks or grandstand quarterbacks."

—He is "very upset" at some of the criticism over admission of Vietnamese refugees "because the United States has had a long tradition of opening its doors to immigrants from all countries." Ford said he is encouraged by support from the AFL-CIO executive committee, the American Jewish Committee and a group of governors and a mayor.

—"The war in Vietnam is over" and "it would be unfortunate for us to rehash allegations as to individuals that might be to blame or administrations that might be at fault." He said a congressional inquiry into how the United States got in and got out of Vietnam "would only be divisive and not helpful."

—The United States has "very hard intelligence" that some 80 or 90 former Cambodian officials and their wives were executed. He cited this as "very factual evidence of the bloodbath that has taken place or is in the process of taking place in Cambodia."

In Vietnam, "hard evidence" of a blood bath is lacking but the flight of 120,000 Vietnamese who feared their lives were in jeopardy "is the best evidence of what probably will take place."

Investigation of Rep. Clay leads to inmates

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Several persons, including present and former prison inmates, have been interviewed in connection with a federal investigation of U.S. Rep. William Clay, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat has reported.

The newspaper said in today's editions that a Justice Department attorney arrived in St. Louis late Monday for the interviews.

Clay was linked with drug traffic during the trial last December of former state Rep. John C. Conley, Jr., who was subsequently convicted on narcotics charges and sentenced to 15 years in prison. Conley has appealed.

A government brief filed during the Conley trial stated that Clay was present during a narcotics transaction discussion three years ago. Also present, the brief said, were Conley, an undercover agent and alleged drug figure Melvin Saunders, who was later found murdered.

In times like these, it's not surprising Olds is the third best-selling car in America.

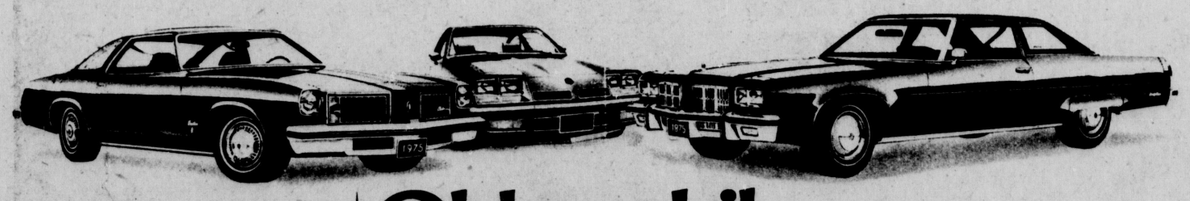

Everybody wants good gas mileage.
According to test results published in the EPA Buyers Guide, every '75 Olds tested showed improved overall mileage over its '74 counterpart. Olds had 13 models that got 18 mpg or better in the highway test, 13 mpg or better in the city test.

Everybody wants a car he can afford.
Whatever size and type of car buyers are shopping for, more and more of them are discovering that car can be an Olds. Eight Oldsmobile models have a base manufacturer's suggested retail price under $4000; fourteen models are under $4300—and every Olds is competitively priced.

Everybody wants a car built to last.
For 78 years, Oldsmobile has been noted for engineering and dependability—qualities which become increasingly important to car buyers in times like these. Another reason, too, why the Oldsmobile franchise is one of the most desired in the industry.

Everybody wants more for his money.
And it's the value that Olds builds into its cars that helps keep Olds owners coming back—and bringing new converts with them.

Everybody wants a car like nobody else's.
To a lot of America's car buyers today, the simple fact that a car is an Oldsmobile does indeed set it apart from everybody else's. We put a lot of car behind that name—and in today's market, that's the kind of value people are looking for in their next new car.

New moves for the new market of '75.
